Holiday Excess Got You
Feeling A Little Bloated?

If you've been thinking about what you've put on during the holidays, come to the place where you can take it off.

Come join the largest and best health and fitness facility on the East End. Right now, we're offering a special one-year membership for only $399, and a six-month rate of just $289.

Of course, getting in shape is a lot easier at OmniHealth & Racquet Club. With two full rooms of
Masters® and free weights, we've got just the right equipment for your workout.

Each membership includes free racquetball, free yoga classes, free Spinning® classes and more than 40 aerobic classes a week on our Gerstung™

The Down Factory Store

www.downfactorystore.com

Thanks to our retail and "online" customers we are one of the largest resources for goose down comforters, pillows and featherbeds. Consumers that compare our quality and prices to those of department stores, discounters, catalogs and other web sites find that we are indeed unbeatable - and we guarantee that! Know the facts of down before you buy.

FACT: Down comes from the chest of the bird to keep it insulated from the weather. Feathers (those things with quills) come from the back of the bird to keep it dry. Down can cost as much as $10.00 an ounce, feathers 10¢ an ounce. Over 90% of down manufacturers find it to their advantage to add over 30% feathers to their down. It's like buying three pounds of ground sirloin and getting two pounds of meat and one pound of fat. You have paid for meat and got fat, it's the same with their down, they both do it because it's legal. We do not contaminate our down by adding feathers to it.

Guaranteed

Comforters

KNOW THE FACTS BEFORE YOU BUY IT

FACT: Fill power, this is the amount the cubic inches filled by one ounce of down. Higher fill power means a higher quality down. You will find that as the quality of the down increases, so does the comfort & life of the item.

FACT: We use only high thread count, baffle box construction, 100% cotton covers on our down comforters & pillows. Down insulates by trapping air and holding in your body temperature, keeping you comfortable through the night. Low quality comforters are usually heavier because it takes more of an inferior down to fill a comforter. Inferior down becomes clumpy and it can't breath, resulting in your becoming over heated and uncomfortable. Our high quality down gives you the warmth and comfort without the weight.

FACT: In all likelihood you will have your comforter longer than the car you are now driving.

Predicting 2002

Some Of Our Readers Are Taking A Shot At What The New Year Will Bring

In 2002...

That my friendship with Dan Rattiner will continue in full bloom as it has always done in 2002, 2003, 2004, etc. -Richard Adler, Broadway Composer

Anyone who employed a "feng shui" specialist instead of a decorator will be legally required to turn their furniture upside down, facing the kitchen. Tom Cruise will open a Scientology Center on Gin Lane after his divorce from Penelope Cruz. -Adrien Arpel, Beauty and Cosmetics Consultant

New York will come back better than ever! Dan's will be more popular than ever! Dreesen's will sell more doughnuts! The Artists will beat the Writers! Peace on Earth in '01! -Alec Baldwin, Actor

In the upcoming elections we'll turn out some of those pious frauds who have taken advantage of September 11th. However, I confess that this is more a wish than a prediction. Alas. We'll stop worrying about the Taliban and start worrying about Washington. -R. O. Blechman, Cartoonist

People will finally realize that living near nuclear power plants that can't be protected from possible acts of terror is too great a price to pay for energy and public outcry will shut them down at long last. We will adopt sensible safe clean renewable energy policies and oh yeah...belly button rings will become passe. -Christie Brinkley, Supermodel

World surprises! Continuing move to financial con-

Hampton houses as the world embraces modernism and art as answer to 9/11.

-Coco Brown, Developer

The old axiom "History makes the man" will not apply to "smoke-em-out dead or alive" W. Bush, our President. 2002 will prove that he really is the jerk who hustled the presidency. Also, the Yankees will take the series in 2002. -Ralph Carpentier, Artist

We will have world peace and mortgage rates back below 7.00%! -Melissa Cohn, Mortgage Broker

Governor George Pataki will win a smashing re-election victory and Mike Bloomberg will have a very successful first year in office! - Bill Diamond and Regine Traulsen,

Snowdrops in February... jonquils in May...and many, many clients seeking the peace and quiet of our Hamptons. - Tina

Fredericks, Hamptons Real Estate Legend

The weather will be perfect, the price of lobster salad will go down and the writers will be gracious in victory in the Artists & Writers Softball Game -Mort Zuckerman servation. Very poor Hampton rental market, but house sales relatively strong, and very strong for modernist

South O' the Highway (and North, too)

Billy Joel has bought an extremely private waterfront home in North Haven not far from the home of fellow recording star Jimmy Buffett. Joel's latest album has gone to #1 on the Classical Music Chart. Music shall fill the air in North Haven, undoubtedly charming the deer.

This week, you will begin to hear radio spots featuring Stevie Wonder and Russell Simmons of East Hampton, promoting the Foundation for Ethnic Tolerance which suggests we can all get along. This is the organization founded by Rabbi Marc Schneier of Westhampton Beach.

Happy Birthday NV. A toast to owner Frank Cillione for steering this great Manhattan night club through six years. This Monday, Def Jam Chairman Russell Simmons will hold his annual Rush Philanthropic Arts Foundation party for needy kids there.

We don't often report on the daily lives of the rich and famous who live in these parts, but you know the actress Rosie Perez and how she plays all these obnoxious, whiny characters? Well, there she was the other day, up in Kmart, doing a non-stop mad dash through the place, packages falling this way and that had to be picked up by a harried young man tagging along behind her, manning the cell phone. Looked just like one of her parts in a movie. Hey, maybe this WAS a movie.

The feature on the front page of the Sunday New York Times auto section last week was about this incredible, upscale BMW with its equally impressive Mark Levinson sound system, which the Times describes as probably the best sound system on the planet. Mark Levinson, formerly the owner of the Cello Sound System store in East Hampton, is the designer, now perhaps the most respected in the industry. Married to actress Kim Cattrall, the Levinsons live on the water in East Hampton.

East Hampton's Martha Stewart threw a Christmas luncheon for 600 employees of her company Omnimedia at Brasserie 8 in Manhattan last week.

Ann Liguori, the TV and radio sportscaster and author who frequently hosts charity golf outings in Westhampton Beach, has been named to the advisory board of Doonbeg Golf Club, a new Greg Norman designed course located in the west of Ireland.

A scholarship fund named for the late entrepreneur Victor K. Kiam has been established at Kiam's alma mater, the Harvard Business School, which Kiam graduated in 1951. Kiam maintained residences in the Hamptons, Manhattan and Palm Beach and passed away last summer. He owned numerous businesses during

GIVE YOUR CHILD A HEALTHY SMILE

Many parents don't realize how early dental problems can occur, or just how important those "baby teeth" are!

Prolonged and frequent bottle or breast feeding can cause baby bottle tooth decay. Diets high in sugar from fruit roll-ups, sticky candies, juice and soda can also cause lots of cavities. Thumb and pacifier habits can cause malformations of the palate.

Children are not done losing their baby teeth until they are 12-13 years old! These teeth hold the spaces for permanent teeth, shape your child's face, and help with speech, eating and chewing.

Dr. Nancy Cosenza specializes in dentistry for children from infancy to their teenage years. At Hampton Pediatric Dental Associates, we know that not only children, but their teeth, are entirely different from adults. In fact, pediatric dentists require 2 years' additional training and education beyond dental school!

NOW AVAILABLE

Digital Radiography - uses 80% less Radiation with x-rays for your child!

(There are only 5,000 pediatric dentists in the U.S. and we're the only pediatric dental practice in the Hamptons!)

Dr. Janet Stoess-Allen, our orthodontist, believes in early orthodontist intervention for those children who will clearly benefit from it. Early treatment presents the opportunity to influence jaw growth in a positive manner, lower the risk of trauma to protruded upper incisors, correct harmful oral habits, and improve esthetics and self-esteem!

Our office is colorfully painted and cheerfully designed - a definite "kid-friendly" environment. Our staff is genuinely warm and cheerful too!

Call us at (631) 287-8687 if you have any questions or would like to arrange an appointment.

Remember that good dental habits and experiences started in childhood will last a lifetime! We know how to make kids leave the dentist's chair smiling -- and their parents, too!

The Long Cool Tall Drink Of Water

I was sitting all by myself, pen in hand, at the Peconic Coast in East Hampton. I had been suffering from writer's block for quite some time, when all of a sudden, up walked this "long cool tall drink of water". She was a gorgeous brunette from head to toe. Even though the lights had been dimmed, her sparkling eyes lit up the room. East Hampton would be known as Sunken Hampton, if she traveled north to Alaska...she had a smile That would melt the polar ice caps.

I was a little bit nervous when she came up to my table and asked me what I would like to eat. For the first time in my life, I was tongue tied, but her warm friendly personality put me right at ease. Although she was obviously a very mature young woman for her age, she had a child-like quality which was quite disarming. I couldn't help but feel better. Her youthful exuberance was quite contagious.

Before I knew it, I began writing for the first time since I can remember. This lovely, "long cool tall drink of water" had helped bring me back to my old self once again.

I felt young and vibrant for the first time in years.

My creative juices were once again flowing.

Thank God for the Peconic Coast and that "long cool tall drink of water"!

Thank You,

A year ago I predicted that our new President would harm the economy and I feel the trend toward favoring corporate tax cuts will increase the deficit and create long term weakness. I also predicted that the Nasdaq would weaken and I feel that the tech sector will remain vulnerable. The Fed did cut interest rates but now there isn't much more room for reduction. In sum, we are in for precarious times. I consider myself an optimist but after Afghanistan we have to address the domestic economic situation. –Steven A. Ludsin, Attorney

I predict that the United States and its allies will achieve a stunning victory against terrorism in 2002, resulting in a surge of confidence throughout the New York metropolitan region and the entire nation. "I think that there is going to be lot less of what we don't need. I think that there's this sense of spending wisely, of using time with great care, and of making sure that the people who mean something to you really know it. Doing things that somehow reflect your values, your views of yourself and your world. You know, I think that our lives seem very precious to us in the face of this kind of event (9/11), so people are going to be more careful in lots of ways and I think that that's actually quite good." –Marsha Norman, Pulitzer Prize-winning Playwright

This is a trauma for the world. We are never going to forget about it. The only thing, I think, that I really feel positive about is that I believe there are more good people in the world than there are evil people. I believe that the children are very important for our future. We're fortunate that we live in a place where love of life, not hate, is a very important sentiment I believe in. No matter how bleak things may be, East Hampton is always good for the soul. –Anne Jackson, Actress

In the last 24 months we have seen two shocks of historical proportions –the collapsing of the longest economic boom in American history and the beginning of a war against terrorism, potentially the longest war in our history. We will be living with the implications of both in 2002. To offset the feeling of uneasiness that many of us have, it is likely to be

The Year Santa's Headquarters Moved Out To The Hamptons

By Dan Rattiner
A Christmas fable
for the children of the Hamptons (to be read aloud)

On September 24, 1963, Mrs. Phipps, who was president of the Southampton Chamber of Commerce, was in the Tiny Tilly Antique Store talking to her friend Tiny Billy Tilly, who was indeed very tiny, just as he was closing up.

"I think another weekend or two," Tiny said. "That should be it. Then I have to pack everything away. It's such a bother. Close up in September, then re-open in May. Your Chamber of Commerce should do something about this."

"Maybe we should," Mrs. Phipps said. "We should be open in ALL the seasons," Tiny said, spreading his arms. "Spring, summer and fall."

"What about winter?" Mrs. Phipps asked. "Oh, you'll never get anybody to come out to Southampton in the wintertime," Tiny said. "I wasn't even THINKING about that."

Mrs. Phipps walked back toward the Chamber office in deep thought. Maybe there WAS something she could do about the wintertime. She'd think about it.

Two weeks later, there was a luncheon with all the members of the Chamber at John Duck's

"Jerry Elliston usually plays Santa," the man who owned the Chevrolet dealer said. "He might get upset."

"Are you serious?" somebody asked Mrs. Phipps.

"I am perfectly serious," Mrs. Phipps said.

"Why do we just ASSUME that the real Santa wouldn't pay us a visit three weeks before Christmas?"

"He would be too busy wrapping presents," a restaurant owner said.

"And we are a very small town," a real estate dealer said.

"All we have to do is ASK," replied Mrs. Phipps.

* * *

On August 23, 1964, the editor of the New York Daily News called a photographer into his office... "I want you to go out to the Hamptons," he said, "and get us some pictures of Santa Claus."

Restaurant to discuss the summer and plan for the upcoming year. The place was packed. And one thing they had to discuss was the little parade held at the beginning of December on Main Street to welcome Santa Claus to town.

"Why don't we invite the REAL Santa?" Mrs. Phipps said.

Those of us who were here that first Saturday in December that year well remember Santa's visit. This was the first time the REAL Santa had come to eastern Long Island. We went out to the Westhampton Airport to cheer him coming in with his reindeer. We marched them down Montauk Highway through Hampton

Bays and into Southampton. And we gave them a whole tour of the town. At the end of the day back at the airport, Santa gave a few lucky kids rides up and around in his sleigh. I was sixteen at the time and I got one of those rides. I will never forget it. We flew low over the big Presbyterian Church in Westhampton Beach, we glided along the beach over the ocean. The whole thing was filmed by all the New York television stations — Mrs. Phipps had arranged for them to come out — and later that night, after Santa left, we went home and watched it again on every one of the three television channels we had. We only had three channels back then.

I think Santa coming to Southampton kind of put Southampton on the map that winter, because the next summer, which was my first year working at the post office, we had all sorts of celebrities out here. I remember Marilyn Monroe coming for her mail. The Rolling Stones came in to pick up packages. Even Jackie Kennedy, the president's wife, was out that summer, visiting her family, the Bouviers. She hadn't been out in years.

What followed after that, however, was something I would call a disaster, though Mrs. Phipps later said, nothing ventured, nothing gained. She should have worked at the post office.

* * *

In July of the following year, Mrs. Phipps came bounding into the mayor's office in Southampton, waving a letter she had gotten from the North Pole.

"It worked! It worked!" she shouted at Mayor Butts.

"What worked?"

"Santa Claus is coming to town!" she shouted. "He's moving here. He's moving his whole operation here!"

"But..."

"You know what this means? Santa's workshop. All the elves. Mr. and Mrs. Claus. They think it can work out here. They came here last December and they loved it. Our shops can stay open all year around. We are going to have a WINTER bigger than the SUMMER."

* * *

On August 23, 1964, the editor of the New York Daily News called a photographer into his office on the 17th floor for a meeting.

"I want you to go out to the Hamptons," the editor said, "and get us some pictures of Santa Claus."

"Santa Claus?"

"We're told he's out there. Look. You came in with pictures of Jackie Kennedy, Marilyn Monroe and the Rolling Stones last summer. This summer we want Santa Claus. We're told he's rented an oceanfront home on Gin Lane in Southampton. We don't know which one, but we will find out. Get a long lens. Walk the beach."

"I'll get him," the photographer said.

The next afternoon, the photographer positioned himself behind a sand dune just adjacent to a house with a red tile roof in which, he was told, was Santa Claus.

About 3 p.m., a very fat man in a flowered bathing suit opened a slider and walked out onto the deck facing the ocean. He carried a newspaper under his right arm and in his left hand a drink with a little umbrella, ice, two straws and some kind of fruit in it. He lay down on a chaise lounge — a very large man with pale, white skin and a few day's growth of white beard.

Here they come, thought the photographer. Next comes Santa Claus.

The man on the chaise lounge read the newspaper, and then, after awhile, fell asleep. Nobody else came out. At 4, the photographer

The First Day The Mayor Can Legally Drive Serran-Pagan Out Of The Hamptons

By Dan Rattiner

Since September, when a new farm animal law in Southampton Village was passed, I have written extensively about it, particularly about how it relates to the one individual it seems to be aimed at, Gines Serran-Pagan. Unfortunately, as it turns out, I have been misinformed about what it says. And so I hereby apologize to readers for having misled them. It has been only this week, as the law goes into effect, that I have gotten a copy of it and actually read it.

What it does NOT say, and what I thought it said, is that anyone who has over an acre and a half of land is welcome to have farm animals on their property as pets, but those who have less than that amount of land have to get a special permit. What it DOES say, is that NOBODY with less than an acre and a half can have farm animals as pets — ponies, geese, chickens and so forth — but that if you have OVER an acre and a half, you can apply for a one-year special permit which, at the whim of the mayor — after considering the pros and cons for the community as the law is written — can be given. Or not. Imagine this. Basically shutting out farm animals in a rural area which is spending millions to save its farms.

Before I get to how this change affects Gines Serran-Pagan, I would like to say that simply to get rid of Gines Serran-Pagan, who has already said he will move out of the community if he cannot have his farm animals and who does not have an acre and a half, the mayor will go to incredible lengths. Imagine. A rural community with many farms, now with a new rule that says nobody can have farm animals as pets — unless the mayor says so, and then only for a year, unless he agrees to renew the permit.

And there is more. Gines Serran-Pagan, who lives next to the mayor's father-in-law, has run his small art gallery and farm in Southampton Village for three years now. The property was originally a farm, though development around it has reduced it dramatically in size, and so in order to get rid of Gines Serran-Pagan, the village's new law has a provision that states that keeping farm animals as an activity is to be made an exception to the common "grandfather provision" usually accorded pre-existing activities on a particular piece of property. What this means is that even if you have had a pony for a pet for years, if the mayor decides not to grant you a one-year permit to keep the pony, you and your pony are suddenly illegal.

Very illegal. You could be fined every day you have the pony after that, and it is even possible that the village could send the police in to remove your pony who live in front, named Koehler, and are closest to the Serran-Pagan barn and are strong supporters of his right to continue to have his farm animals. They have noted the place is kept neat and clean. They have made reference to the many school children who are brought over to pet the farm animals. The owner of another parcel adjacent to Serran-Pagan, says the farm animals do not bother him, and though he is not in favor of them or opposed to them, he is very concerned about the mayor driving a neighbor of his from his home. This week, he intends to sign a lease of half an acre of his land to Serran-Pagan. Fences will come down and new fences put up. Serran-Pagan will then be in a position to at least APPLY to the mayor to keep his animals.

The person who lives to the North of Serran-Pagan is the father-in-law of the mayor. At the public meeting in September, at which this new law was discussed, the father-in-law held up a tape recorder, turned the volume up loud, and played the sound being made by a goat, which he said came from just such an animal on the property, legally on the property at that time, of

if you don't. I discussed this with an attorney. They would remove your pony to a shelter. And two days later, they could legally have him put down. As for going on your property, they can do that. And their financial liability for removing an animal is limited to the value of that animal. No more than a few dollars for a goose or a chicken. Maybe a thousand dollars — what you paid for it — for a pet pony. Who would Serran-Pagan.

The new law was voted in by the village board at that public meeting, was signed into law two weeks later and, as prescribed by its provisions, went into effect on Wednesday of this week, December 19, ninety days after its signing. Whether a team of officials came to remove Serran-Pagan's animals yesterday (Wednesday) is not known at this writing because Wednesday is past our deadline. Perhaps you will read about it in Newsday.

Andrew Siben, who represents Serran-Pagan in a civil rights lawsuit against the mayor personally and the village board personally as well as both of them officially, says that very likely Serran-Pagan will be served a summons, after which an appearance date will be set. We shall see.

On the other hand, by the time you read this, a judge may have responded positively to an Article 78 request, which should be filed on Serran-Pagan's behalf toward the end of this week. An Article 78, which is an urgent request, asks, in this case, that the activation of the mayor's new law be delayed until a hearing can be held about whether it is even legal. There is the issue of whether the village can override the grandfathering of an activity. And there is the issue of whether the village has passed this law to single out one particular individual who is perceived to be

EVER get a pet farm animal if every year you had to re-apply to keep him alive.

The old farm, where Gines Serran-Pagan has his Red Barn Atelier, is at 88 North Main Street, on a flag lot that goes in behind several lots with houses on them. Serran-Pagan's property is one acre. Until now, and anytime before that, his having farm animals was perfectly legal under the existing laws. The people bothering a relative of the mayor.

In support of this, attorneys for Serran-Pagan have made a transcript of a video taken of the public hearing concerning this proposed new law. I have read the transcript of this hearing, and it is absolutely astonishing. Serran-Pagan is permitted to speak for only five minutes. After he speaks, the mayor gets up and for more than twenty minutes, loudly and angrily berates Serran-Pagan, in public, in front of all those attending the public hearing. Here is some of it.

"The pigs which you introduced at that time, happened to get loose in the neighborhood. I once again took the time as the mayor of the village, and someone who was trying to work out harmonious neighborhood situation, came to your house, however, did not find you, because as you know, you spend a great deal of time out to this country, doing art trips in various other parts of the world because you claim that you are a renowned artist. But I did find a gentleman there, who was in charge of your farm and your assets. Unfortunately, I feel bad, because I can't speak Spanish, but I said to him, 'Excuse me, the pigs are loose,' He said to me, 'NO spekee the anglaisie.' I said, 'You know, pigs?' He goes, 'The porkies?' I said, 'Yah, the porkies. The porkies run away.' So, in broken English I said to him, 'And you have to go chase the porkies, because they were digging up the land, the neighbor's lawns.

"You on any particular time, out of the good nature of your heart, in which I will say so, have invited school children to that property, including your very nice son, who I don't believe is in the country at this time, but we won't even go there, and the children have come there and you as well as the artwork that you have done, have tried to be a good member of this community. I said to you, and the remark you made here my friend, has made me in my eyes and my opinion of you, changed me. There's one thing I don't do, and I've taken great pride in my entire life, is lie, or tell falsities, or tell stories. The conversation that you referred to there, if that goes to case, you better be careful that you don't plagiarism yourself. I in no way never made any of those comments regarding you or what would be done to you. You know as well as I do at this current time, you have other problems, in this village. You have gone, you have taken actions throughout the village, including the school zones, including other things, that there are current, including accusations against you a this time, that are out there.

"I've heard of exaggerations, I've heard of talk, I've sat here, I've listened to it, and I'm going to tell you for one more time, We're not denying you the right to have a pet for your son, or an animal or two for yourself. What we are doing, is, in the words of Mr. Gilmartin, who represents you at this time but is not here this evening, which is interesting, we have a loophole in the law. Now. That law has been on the books forever, and people who lived, including Red Top Barn, Mr. Phillips and a lot of other people who have animals. They have lived respectively with their neighbors. You, sir, have brought this in so it causing everybody, in all of these neighborhoods a problem, all because of your, as you say, your manlihood, that, and you're making statements in a public meeting, and I want to tell you right now, I'm going on record, that are outright lies, about your conversation with me.

The Case Of The Late Ted Ammon Shows We All Share The Same Joys And Troubles

By Dan Rattiner

The murder of Ted Ammon remains unsolved. It happened here in East Hampton during the night of October 21 of this year and was the first murder in that village in more than twenty years. Ammon was asleep in bed in his multi-million dollar estate on Middle Lane. Someone came in, bludgeoned him to death and left. Police are still investigating.

Between that time and this, however, detectives and reporters have poked around, uncovering many of the details of his life. And if any good is ever to come of this, whether they catch the killer or not — and nothing is going to bring Mr. Ammon back — this is it: if you've ever been depressed, ever walked around thinking that your life is filled with woe, especially when compared to that happy person over there, there is something to be learned from looking at the story of Ted Ammon.

Before the murder, this is what people knew about Ted Ammon. He was movie-star handsome, rich, brilliant, kind and caring. He was the first person to pass the New York State Bar Exam without ever having gone to law school.

In his business dealings, he was honorable. He donated that amount of money, they would put his name on one of the buildings. He declined. Just spend the money well, he said.

What follows is what has been learned about Ted Ammon after his murder, and it is not being presented here just as dirt... but to suggest that when it comes down to it, everyone has their problems.

Personally, he was a loving, doting father. He and his beautiful wife, Generosa, had adopted twins, Alexa and Gregory, and were raising them in a spacious penthouse on the Upper East Side. Ammon would decline an invitation to a fundraiser or business meeting if it meant seeing one of his children in a school play. As for he and his wife, they were going through a divorce. Too bad.

Yes, it would be easy to be jealous of the life of Ted Ammon. With your own problems, the leak under the kitchen sink, the aunt who is no longer speaking to you, that little rash on your ankle and your spouse who just threw the TV through the second story window, you might be forgiven for thinking there are people out there living wonderful, golden lives and none of them involve you.

made several fortunes and gave much of what he had to charity. He sought no honors. After giving some $15 million to his alma mater, Bucknell University, he was told that, for having

What follows is what has been learned about Ted Ammon after his murder, and it is not being presented here as dirt or to suggest that he had more things going wrong than even you, but to suggest that when it comes down to it, everyone has their problems. In fact, other than the obvious, which is that he got murdered, his life is just about as balanced with good and bad as yours or mine.

Ammon had come out alone to his eleven bedroom storybook summer home in East Hampton that weekend because he enjoyed getting some peace and quiet from the problems of the day, which were many. For one thing, he was being sued by several employees who said they did work for him and never got paid. The total owed, they claimed, was about a million dollars. He entertained a woman at his home over that weekend, not his wife. She can be seen leaving the house on a tape taken by one of the surveillance cameras.

Ammon had separated from her and she was living in one of their homes and he in another — they had at least four homes — and she lived openly with an electrician boyfriend who had done work at one of the houses, all the bills, for the electrical work and all the rest of his work, going to Mr. Ammon.

Furthermore, for all his smarts and good looks, Ted Ammon had made a big mistake regarding his will. He was in a nasty divorce with Generosa. It had been going on for six months. About thirty million was on the table. Yet everything in his will was still left to her. He hadn't gotten around to changing it.

I could go on and on with this, but I will leave you with these two items. One is that the police are investigating a theory that this might have been a mafia hit. The other involves a satellite dish sitting on top of a building in Manhattan, directly across the street from Ammon's apartment. The twins, now 11, are over Ammon's house for a visit. They are afraid of the satellite dish. Why? Their mother told them daddy had that dish put up so he could spy on them. Ammon has to take his children over to the building across the street, have a meeting with the owner of the satellite dish and ask him about it. He explains it is there so the people in that building can get more television channels.

About two hundred people attended the memorial for Mr. Ammon. He was a fine man, many of them said. Indeed he was. And so are you and so am I and don't you forget it.

So the next time something happens at your house and the police come, think of Mr. Ammon. Think of anybody you thought was your better. They are not. We are all in this together.

Wait a minute. What's this little purple bump I have on my back?

A Never Ending Story

Law Regulating Lobster Fishing Is Passed, Struck Down, Passed and Struck Down

By Dan Rattiner

A group of angry east end lobstermen went to Albany three weeks ago to complain about a new law that went into effect on November 7. They were accompanied by our local State Assemblyman, Fred Thiele of Sag Harbor, who demanded that something be done, that meetings be held with the agency regulating the industry, that changes take place. Nothing came of it.

When you look at this situation closely, though, you cannot help but be struck how so many factors and people and government agencies and natural events have intermingled with one another to create this problem. Here, in as short a form as I can explain it, is what happened.

The new law creates a Fisher's Island Special Management Area. It extends from the south shore of Fisher's Island out one mile. And it extends from the north shore of Fisher's Island to the Connecticut shoreline two miles away. It also extends east to the Rhode Island border.

I've always wondered about Fisher's Island. Several billion years ago a glacier rumbled down from the north, pushing rocks and dirt in front of it and came to a halt ten miles south of what is now Connecticut. As it melted, this rock dirt it had been pushing along came to form the south fork of Long Island. Two billion years later, another glacier rumbled down and stopped just short of where the first glacier had stopped. Here the rock and dirt formed the north fork of Long Island.

If you look at a map, you will see that these two forks, which we call fish tails, would have been just about the same size if only the two glaciers had pushed down the same amount of debris. But they didn't. What is now the south fork is much longer and wider, apparently because the second glacier did not bring down as much debris as the first.

As a matter of fact, the north fork is not even contiguous. When it peters down toward the end, it turns into just a series of islands, specifically Plum Island, and then, about ten miles off, Fisher's Island. Fisher's Island is so far off the North Fork it is practically tucked into the belly of Connecticut. By all rights it should be part of Connecticut. People who come to the island come via the ferry from Connecticut. You can sit on the beach on Fisher's Island and right there offshore is Connecticut. But no. Fisher's Island is in New York. How this happened is because when they were deciding what land should be part of what state, the governor of Connecticut made a mistake. At the time, and this was in 1640, Governor of Connecticut John Winthrop positioned the English Crown to allow his grown son, John Winthrop, Jr., to keep a small island off Connecticut as a little private fiefdom. The Crown said yes. It need not be administered by Connecticut.

collar workers began moving back to the mainland. Also, since there was very little for young people to do on the island off season with the summer mansions closed up, the children of the blue collar workers moved away just about as soon as they turned 18. A labor crisis actually developed on the island. In fact, it got so bad that five years ago, there were not even enough local people on the island out of season to man the ambulances and fire trucks if the need arose. Suddenly, it became very important to the New York summer people to see to it that the blue collar community serving them thrived. If one of the mansions started burning, what were you going to do, call the fire department in Connecticut and tell them to come down to the ferry?

Four years ago, the State of New York passed a law banning lobster fishing in New York State waters by anybody who did not live in the State and have a New York State Lobster licence. There is only one part of the lobster fisheries in New York State that was nearer another state than the rest of New York State. Guess where. Connecticut went to court. There were plenty of Connecticut lobstermen who could stand on the docks in Groton, Stonington and Noank and see, just two miles away, all these blue collar Fisher's Island lobstermen dropping their pots. Other New York State lobstermen, from Montauk and Greenport and other places farther away were out there as well. Three and a half years later, a Federal law overturned the New York State ban.

Some say that, when this happened, some of the wealthy New Yorkers who have summer mansions on Fisher's Island made phone calls to Albany to save their local lobstermen/volunteer firemen. And so, beginning November 7, there was a new law. Though anybody could take lobsters from the seabed around Fisher's Island, anybody interested should take note of the fact that for environmental reasons the lobster fishery around Fisher's Island was a "protected area." You could get a license to take lobsters there, but if you had such a license you would be prohibited from taking lobsters from anywhere else. Also, what you took in these protected waters could not exceed the haul from a total of 300 traps. Small boats out of Fisher's Island, as it happens, do fine with 300 traps.

Larger boats from Connecticut and farther away typically drop 1,000 or 1,300 traps.

And so there you are. In protecting the Fisher's Island lobstermen, the bureaucrats in Albany essentially shot

Four years later, in 1644, back in London, the Duke of York ruled that New York State shall be formed and include "all the islands in Long Island Sound." The new Governor of New York, having made no agreement with Governor Winthrop, declared Fisher's Island part of New York. And from that day to this, so it has been.

Today, about 120 wealthy New Yorkers have big summer homes on Fisher's Island. They started coming there about a hundred years ago, claiming the island as an almost-private enclave. A small village of a few hundred blue collar workers attended them, carpenters, landscapers, grocery store owners, farmers and fishermen. They were from Connecticut.

Beginning about ten years ago, prices for real estate on Fisher's Island rose so high that many of the blue slunk off back to his car. He hadn't taken one single shot.

* * *

The real problem we had with all of this at the time was the mail. I ought to know. That was my first year at the post office and the amount of mail that came in that fall for Mr. Claus there at the post office on Main Street, you wouldn't have believed it. We kept it in the back, huge sacks of it, and every few days an elf would come in and take it.

For everybody else, it was a really good idea to have Santa and his whole operation here.

At least at first. There were sleighs to be built, jobs aplenty alongside the elves at the workshop, which they originally set up in a barn behind Hildreth's. But pretty soon, it was obvious that there was more here than anybody could handle.

At the beginning of November, they transferred me to this big new mail facility they built at the Westhampton Airport. I was the new kid on the block at the post office in Southampton. So I was the first in and the first out. Me and about five other newbees got transferred there, and we had this long drive to work everyday, about half an hour each way, but it STILL wasn't enough. Mail was coming in from all over the world. I'd never seen so many airplanes.

* * *

The night before Christmas, Mrs. Phipps drove through a blinding snowstorm out to the Westhampton Airport. The roads were so bad it took almost an hour just to get to the airport turnoff, but she was guided along the way by the big flashing beacon that some of the elves had set up at the end of the runway. She parked her car out front of the huge three story workshop factory and went inside.

"You don't look worried," she said to Santa, who was overseeing the vast sleigh-loading operation. They were standing in this huge hanger.

"I never look worried," Santa said. "But to tell you the truth, I am. I just always have this smile on my face."

"It's his Santa Claus face," the elf standing next to him with the clipboard said.

Mrs. Phipps looked at Santa. Behind his wire rimmed glasses, behind his great suntan from the summer, well, you really couldn't tell. Out in front of him, there were maybe 200 elves and about 4,000 workmen, practically everybody who lived in the town, wrapping presents, matching them up with the children's letters, driving them over in fork lifts, loading them into the huge sleigh. It was just two hours to midnight, when Santa absolutely HAD to leave, and some of the workers from town were still painting the faces on 2,623 angels — Mrs. Phipps could read the notation on the elf's

Let's Go To The Videotape

Bin Laden and Other Moments in History That Should Have Been Videotaped

By Jerry Cimisi

In the days following the now infamous bin Laden video, there were countless analysts pontificating on everything from how this mastermind of terrorism so callously and even laughingly talked about the carnage he had inflicted at the World Trade Center and the Pentagon, to a Freudian explanation of all that dream talk on the tape. It seemed that a few of the zealots involved in the jihad had dreams hinting at the awful events of September 11, and at one point bin Laden said he worried that the plan would become known because of the dreams of others. Apparently the Freudian explanation for dreams related to flight is a desire for power, but also indicating no little anxiety about life in general.

Armchair — or academic — psychology aside, the bin Laden tape chilled us or angered us because of its casual, dinner conversation manner. Bin Laden and the others in the tape were eating, sitting on the floor middle eastern style, filling themselves as they talked of the fulfillment of what they saw as God's work. We are surprised that any one can talk of death and destruction in other than a ranting, oratorical, breast beating manner.

But the bin Laden we saw on the tape seemed to fit in with the fragments of bin Laden footage we have seen in the past. He makes sweeping pronouncements in a calm manner. He has the smile of a yogi pronouncing a Zen koan. In a recently television interview, journalist Peter Bergen, who interviewed bin Laden face to face in 1997, described him as "not a macho guy, at all, but more feline." (Indeed, Osama means "lion.") Bergen went on to say that he hadn't found bin Laden charismatic at all, as one might expect, but, instead, "low key," adding, "You could barely hear him speaking."

Perhaps, had we video footage of other infamous evildoers of the past, footage of their private moments, we might be equally struck by their lack of venom as they performed acts which would be damned by history. Or how they talked about their deeds afterwards.

For all of Hitler's theatrical ranting, one can see him talking quietly to Goebbels, Himmler, Goering, perhaps even Dr. Mengele himself on how the solution to the "Jewish problem" was progressing, as he, the Fuhrer, dined on his health conscious diet and listened to some soothing music from one of the German masters. His vile lieutenants, in the Germanic spit and polish of their uniforms, would smile and nod, and perhaps comment on synchronicity that life inflicts upon us, the second live TV killing was of Robert F. Kennedy, in 1968.) Ruby first said he killed Oswald to spare Mrs.

Kennedy the ordeal of a trial. Not long afterward he demanded to be taken from prison to testify in front of the Warren Commission, but the government did not take him up on this. He died in prison in 1966, of cancer. One would have liked to have seen some footage of his last days of privacy, talking about what he knew (or imagined) to the walls of his cell.

Bin Laden's tape might also put us in mind of Admiral Isoroku Yamamoto, who oversaw the attack of Pearl Harbor, but, who, unlike bin Laden, did not delude himself as to the ultimate weakness of the enemy. He told his government that now they had unleashed a sleeping tiger. One sees the Admiral, in a brief respite at the beginning of the war, in a tea garden the profundity of the composer, the felicity of the musicians, while discussing the efficacy of the gas in the camps.

Or Lee Harvey Oswald, ascending the Texas Book Repository (yes, there may indeed have been other assassins,) and positioning himself by that high window. The news footage of Oswald that we do have presents him as an almost shy, almost vulnerable character. Poised in his vantage point above the motorcade, he would not seem a demon about to launch the American psyche into the paranoid and chaotic trip of the sixties, but an anxious unsure young man, hardly aware of the consequences of his act. His declaration afterward with bright flowers, looking into some inner distance, composing haiku about duty and death. But he would be like bin Laden in hardly considering himself an evil man.

Of course it is not merely acts of evil and the small moments of evildoers that might enlighten us if we were to be able to rent videos of them at Blockbuster. We might also find that moments of greatness had more than a patina of the common. Abraham Lincoln in a train proceeding toward Gettysburg, writing down a short speech on the back of an envelope. "I suppose they expect me to say something," he mutters to no one in particular.

Did Washington cross the Delaware with that proud stance the painting depicts, or was he, more likely, huddled against cold, back pressing into the small hull of the boat?

When Rosa Parks was asked to go to the back of the bus, did she say anything other than a simply No? Or not even that, just shake her head? Reportedly, she told someone in later years that it had not been so much the injustice of it all, of all of the discrimination she and her race had suffered in the past that had made her refuse, but that, simply, she had been very tired that day and did not feel like getting up.

Or how about Neil Armstrong first stepping onto the surface of the moon, the very first time that a human being had set foot on a world other than that he was "a patsy" had not only the ring of actual but of psychic truth.

Incidentally, hardly anyone considers this, but we all know it: Oswald was the first person to be killed live on TV. Two days after the assassination he was gunned down by Jack Ruby, another angst-ridden character, owner of a Dallas strip club, crony of cops and gangsters. (In that earth? He uttered that great line, "one small step for man, one giant leap for mankind." In fact, Armstrong had meant to say "a man," but did not. In revisionist politeness, there are today reference works that correct this "error," but what did he say to himself, not audible enough to be picked up by his space suit's transmission? It would be allowed if he did not feel wholly overwhelmed by the drab surface of the moon and the too-near horizon. W.C. Fields might have uttered, "I'd rather be in Philadelphia."

The capacity of electronic images has indeed shown us heroism juxtaposed against the banality of evil. There's the Rodney King video and then there are the firefighters, police and medical personnel dragging people out of the collapsing debris and ash of the World Trade Center. It is our understandable instinct that what we see is the truth of things, and in the above two cases that was indeed the truth of the matter. But when we watch the bin Laden video we viscerally expect the violence of the Rodney King tape and are all the more angered when this man connects a happiness to death and destruction and compares this to the joy of winning at soccer.

Timothy McVeigh, who also declared war on America, was a more satisfying villain. He might have called what he did in Oklahoma City a Grand Slam in the ninth inning, but instead his "sporting" analogy, as his death approached, was to give the Spartan, defiant pronouncement that the score was "168 to 1," the larger figure the number of the dead in the federal building, and the lone integer his own soon-to-be expiated life.

And speaking of videos: McVeigh told the darkly humorous story about driving to the Murrah Building in the Ryder truck filled with explosive that morning of April 19, 1995. He had lit the fuse. A five minute fuse. He was a block or so away from the building, when he hits a red light. And, of course, stops.

And so the man who thought the American government evil, who was about to kill many, many people, obeyed the law and waited for the light to change. That would have been a Hitchcockian vignette, a closeup of McVeigh's sparse, tense face, the baleful eyes, the sweat undoubtedly on the lean, bony forehead. Waiting. Waiting. And then the light changed. And a little bit of history changed.

It remains for history to see just how much Osama (or Usama, as they call him at the Pentagon) affects the course of history. He was the most "optimistic" of all, he said on the tape. His optimism and ours, of course, are different.

In the end, we might consider that in this age of the electronic image we perhaps put too much stock in the footage of others, and ourselves. The image and the voice is all we see and our explanations of acts and intents stop there. The once literary exploration of the psyche is degraded into a popular or dry psychology that posits evil as an even, explicable equation, the evil act as response to some inner injury in younger years.

It is not "logical" that a man talks of killing people as he calmly eats and socializes. But, it is very, very human.

NEW YORK'S MOST CELEBRATED SYNAGOGUE

By Dan Rattiner

Russell Means, the Indian activist, movie actor and now gubernatorial candidate, is a frequent visitor to the Hamptons. I caught up with him last week at the farm and studio of Gines Serran-Pagan in Southampton where he has been spending some time. He and Gines are old friends.

Means was born and spent his early years on the Sioux Indian reservation between Nebraska and South Dakota. When he was six years old, World War II ended. His father came home. He was a trained welder and auto mechanic and moved the family to the San Francisco Bay area. He got a job at the submarine base in Vallejo, California on Maie Island, just below Napa. He moved Russell, his two younger brothers, and his wife and himself into a housing project in that town.

"Those were the days," Means said, "when a welder could raise a family of six with his wife not working." By the time Means was thirteen, the family had moved to a house that his father had bought. It cost $11,000.

Means went to high school in San Leandro, California. When he was sixteen, he quit school.

"I wanted to go out to make my first million. I took a train to the Winnabego reservation in Nebraska, twenty miles south of Sioux City. I got odd jobs. I rode a plow behind a tractor. I hauled scrap metal for one cent a pound. And after a while, I thought, I am not going to make a million this way."

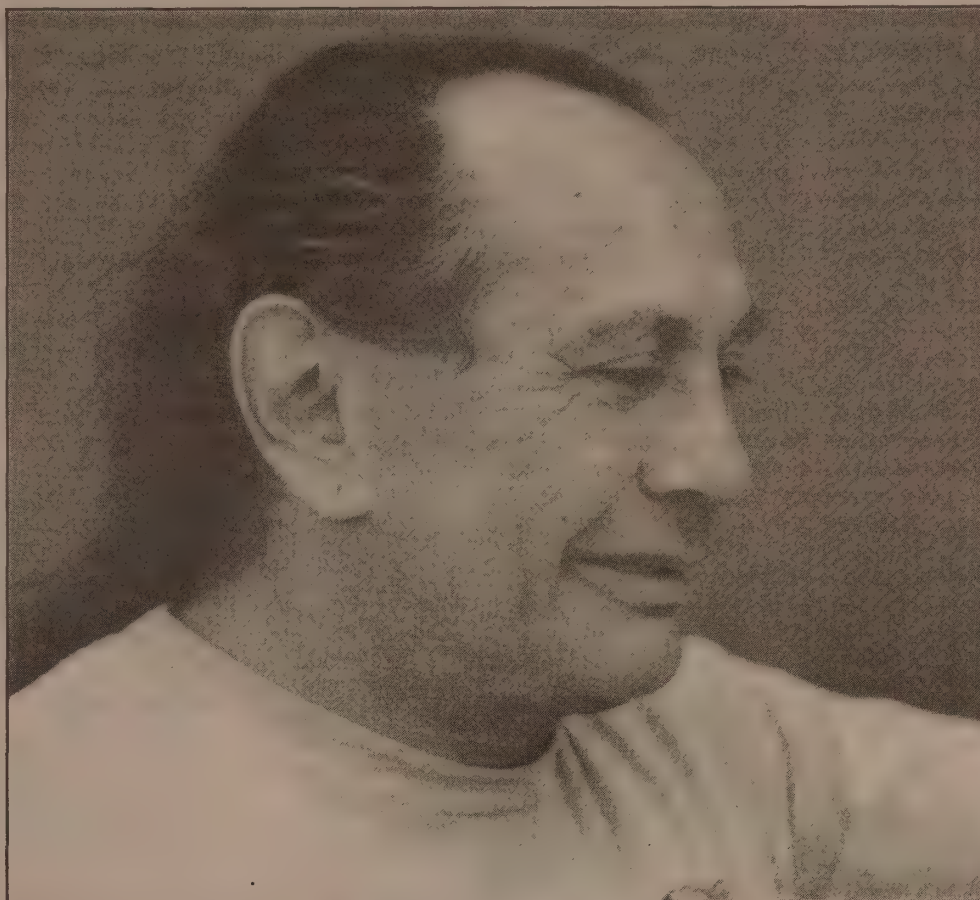

After a year, Means went back to California, finished up at San Leandro, and then when to Oakland City College.

"I started out wanting to be a high school history teacher after I graduated, and to that end moved to Los Angeles," Means said. "This was the mid and late-1960s and the whole country, the young people anyway, were protesting the Vietnam War. I considered the situation of my own people and, in 1969, joined the American Indian Movement, embarking on my career as a militant Indian."

For the next four years, Russell Means organized Indian rights protests in places such as Plymouth Rock, Mount Rushmore and Martha's Vineyard. Each one was bigger and more effective than the one before, and he slowly gained prominence as a leader in that movement.

In 1972, Means led a group of Indian activists on the takeover of the Bureau of Indian Affairs in Washington, D.C. A movie was made based on this event, Seven Days in November. The following year, along with another Indian activist named Dennis Banks, Means led a group of between 100-200 people in the takeover of a trading post, called Wounded Knee, on the Pine Ridge Indian reservation in South Dakota. They remained there for seventy-one days, surrounded by the eighth army, people from the CIA, and the Pentagon, as tens of thousands of people protested nationwide.

Who's Here:

Russell Means Activist/Actor

"While we were at Wounded Knee," Means said, "600 people were arrested around the country. Three-hundred and twenty went to trail, and none were convicted."

At Wounded Knee, Means issued ten demands to the American government. He wanted the White House to look into the broken treaties with the Indians. He wanted the Foreign Relations Committee to write new treaties with the Indians. And he wanted the Department of the Interior to back down. But the government wanted this over. They had Haldeman, Ehrlichman and Mitchell trying to deal with it. At one point they called us and said, 'consolidate your demands to six and we'll cut a deal.' They really didn't know what to do. So they gave us pretty much what we wanted and we finally laid down our arms on May 8. But after we left Wounded Knee, the government broke its first promise."

That promise was broken with the arrest of Means and Banks. The trial was held in St. Paul, Minnesota and lasted for 8 1/2 months and at the end, the judge threw out all of the charges. The judge had received altered evidence and subsequently allowed the defense to expose the crookedness of the FBI and the Justice Department. This was the first time that had ever happened.

How did your parents feel about all of this? I asked.

"Well, my dad died in 1967," he said. "But my mother was proud of me."

The protest of the late-60s and early-70s revolutionized the relationship between the government and the American Indian Nation.

"I think I helped bring self-dignity and self-pride to the American Indians," Means said.

"You have to realize that, as a separate nation within a nation, the Constitution doesn't apply to us. And we are under triple jeopardy. We are beholden to our tribe, to the state and to the federal government. And we are overseen by a congress whose police arm is the FBI. We don't even have access to the Supreme Court as a nation."

For many years after the traumatic effects of the protests and the changes that occurred, Means had an office in the United Nations as part of the International Indian Treaty Council. It was located across from the Secretariat Building at 77 UN Plaza. Means went on speaking engagements around the country and at various times lived in Los Angeles, Phoenix, Albuquerque, Cleveland and Rapid City, North Dakota before settling down in San Jose, New Mexico. San Jose is a small town not far from Albuquerque. He's been married five times and has fifteen children.

It was in 1981, on one of those speaking engagements, that he met Gines Serran-Pagan.

"It was the 100th anniversary of Red Cloud's speech at Cooper Union," Means said. "And after I spoke, I met Gines. He was getting a masters degree in anthropology. He said that he was interested in Indian affairs. So I said, 'come on out to Black Hills, South Dakota. Come see what we're doing. We have retaken 800 acres there and we are trying to rebuild a Holy Land.'"

Beginning in the 1980s, Means began a new career as a movie actor. He has starred in five films: The Last of the Mohicans, Natural Born Killers, Wagons East with John Candy, Wind Runner and, in recent investigate human rights violations. As the siege went on with nothing done, the situation seemed to get worse and worse.

"These were the days of Nixon and Watergate," Means said. "We had our demands and we wouldn't

book review: weekend utopia

By Jessica Romm

Perhaps more so than any other medium, architecture serves as a visual measuring stick of key changes in an area. In Alastair Gordon's book, Weekend Utopia he crafts an accurate history of the development of the South Fork of Long Island, which the Princeton Architectural Press released in August. Although the primary focus is on evolving architectural styles, the scope of the book is much greater. Down to an explanation of the term "The Hamptons," Gordon covers topics describing the formative years of modern living on the East End.

Gordon creates a historical reference for the past century by highlighting some famous visitors and artists in residence who viewed the Hamptons as an ideal landscape in which to work. He describes the development of the "weekendaholics" that have fostered the growth of the area.

The post-war period of the late 1940s and 1950s was such a momentous time in American art and architecture. Nationwide prosperity was marked by the promise of a new kind of leisure. As suburban sprawl engulfed much of Long Island, from which grew Levittown (and its boxes made of ticky-tacky), the East End became a place of freedom for artists and weekend pioneers to enjoy the raw beachfront landscape.

Loathed by the Social Register these "intruders" such as architects Phillip Johnson, Richard Meir, Marcel Breuer, George Nelson, Charles Gwathmey and Andrew Geller experimented with intense modernism changing the visual landscape of the area. Gordon spends a lot of time explaining why breakthroughs in mid-century design manifested themselves out here — and why they were so vehemently opposed.

The book also recounts the gatherings and countless parties at the artist Costantino Nivola's home in The Springs. "It was informal, we would have lunch parties in the garden every weekend." In regular attendance at these gatherings were Willem de Kooning, Mark Rothko, Franz Kline, Fredrick Kiesler, Peter Blake, Lee Krasner and Jackson Pollock. The book also describes a seminal visit of Le Corbusier to the Nivola's estate in 1950 where the "Swiss-born master of the modern movement" created a series of murals on the property. The merging of indoor and outdoor spaces and the simplicity of the country created a utopian years, Pocahontas (he played the voice of the father).

"And then there is a new one this winter called 29 Palms," he said. "I think it is kind of another Pulp Fiction."

Means has been married five times and has fathered fifteen children. Now he is embarking on still a third career. Originally running for governor of the state of New Mexico next November as a libertarian, Means abruptly ended his libertarian bid and opted instead to run as an independent because, as an independent, he would not have to "follow party lines or a party philosophy," said Means.

"I am concerned about what is going on in the world," he said. "What is going on is globalization and I don't believe in it. With global media, we're losing our personal relationships. Our culture is crumbling. And we have begun to implode. In the last twenty-five years, we have had ten wars and we have bombed twelve countries. People feel powerless and the government has robbed them of their individuality and surely of their power. We have a great country, but there are many people who are suppressed, oppressed and repressed. And everyone seems to be in denial about it. That is why I am running for governor."

clipboard — that would be delivered to kids in Costa Rica. They would have to be loaded with the paint still wet, she thought.

"UP at the North Pole," Santa said, "everything is so CENTRAL. It's right there, up on top of the world. And we have many big buildings. Out here on the East End, it's so far out of the way. And it's so small and fragile. I never really realized how small it was. You know, I was born and grew up at the North Pole. So many people just know that address: NORTH POLE."

"The elves took me up there three weeks ago," Mrs. Phipps said. "You have an entire CITY up there. I had no idea."

"Well, it was a good idea to bring it here," Santa said. "And we'll get everything out on time. I think. But next year, I think we have to go back."

"I figured as much," Mrs. Phipps said, a tear in her eye.

"But I'm absolutely going to be here every summer. The surfing, the fishing, all the gallery openings."

"That would be great."

"The fine restaurants. The beautiful churches."

* * *

So two weeks ago, we had the big Santa parade in East Hampton, with everybody out to welcome him to town, and I went to it. At the end of the parade, Santa came down the street, high on his sleigh pulled by his tiny reindeer, and he waved to everybody he saw and he waved to me, but to tell you the truth, I don't think he recognized me. That was so long ago.

"Was that REALLY Santa?" my grandson asked.

Oh, it absolutely was. I'd know that face anywhere. And you know, he DOES rent a place right on the ocean in the summer-time. He's out every July. And I see him in the post office getting his mail. Though not much. He's on vacation.

"Where does he live?"

I can't tell you that. People's addresses, you know, that's a private thing. But I can tell you he is here because, and I don't think its against the rules of the post office to tell you this, I usually get to put his mail in his box. I'm the senior man now. Three years and I retire.

"Can I ask you where he lives after you retire?"

The man thought about it. Nope, he said.

"How do I know you are not making all this up?"

Come with me tonight and we'll go out on the Sunrise Highway in my car. It's right there, just south of the Westhampton Beach turnoff. The flashing light the elves put up at the airport to guide Santa's sleigh. It's still there. That ought to convince you. •

The Sheltered Islander By Sally Flynn

Observations of an Islander # 182 Don't Give Up The Sled...

There are things, people and ideas that don't belong to any one group, they belong to the world.

Mother Theresa and the selflessness she taught us, belongs to the world. Mahatma Ghandhi, Albert Einstein, Louis Pasteur, Monet, Gene Kelly, Pavoratti, all the great minds of art and science, belong not to themselves, but to the world. The Sphinx and the Pyramids, the Statue of Liberty, the Dome of the Rock, the Great Wall of China, the Wailing Wall are things that belong to the world. The values and ideas in the the Bagavad-Gita, the Upanishads, the teachings of Buddha, the Torah and Talmud, the New Testament, the Koran belong to the world. Kwaanza and it's focus on family and community belongs to the world. Chanukah with it's theme of rededication to that which is holy within you, belongs to the world. Christmas with it's message of hope belongs to the world. And I think one of the most precious things of all, Santa, the person and the idea, belongs to the world too.

We learn about Santa very early, he loves us and brings us a present. We grow up a little and figure out the Santa conspiracy. For awhile we think we're too cool to believe in Santa and we denounce our formally precious childhood belief. We remain cool and pretty much know everything by the time we're twenty. It's beyond comprehension to us how our dumb relatives can lead such screwed up lives. We are glad we got a handle on life so early. We'll never repeat the mistakes of our parents.

The ancient Greeks had a saying, "When man plans tomorrow, the Gods laugh...". Through our twenties the Gods' laugh alot... We shun our families for our friends and lovers. We really don't need Santa, families and the whole holiday mishmosh. We are all-knowing, we are powerful, we are stupid.

We spend our thirties backtracking and correcting all the mistakes we mistakenly made in our twenties. Most of us are married with children by now and suddenly we hear our mother's words coming out of our mouths. We notice there is way too much month left at the end of the money. We worry alot.

Forties are great. Aside from the fact that your body parts start heading south, it's wonderful to be in your forties. You start making authentic decisions. You pull old dreams off the shelf and dust them off for another go round. Now you know you have all the things you need and some of what you want. Here is where you realize that money ebbs and flows in our lives and things are afterall, just things, just props in our lives. You realize what's really important is time. You can never have one minute of your life back. You know now that there's not always a "next time".

When you're halfway through your life, you catch on that you might as well try to do what you enjoy now, while you can still enjoy doing it, because you're going to be dead a long time. You become highly selective about how, and with whom, you spend your time. You decide to give most of your worries to God, he's up all night anyway.

In midlife we rearrange our lives to be with friends and family. Other people's opinions finally matter less than your own. Is it really going to matter what someone else thought of anything you did in a hundred years? Nope.

You've matured enough to know that you're not better than anyone else, but damn if you ain't just as good.....and that goes for anyone, high or low, rich or poor. Are the rich happier than you for all their money? Nope. Money creates options, not happiness. Money doesn't insulate anyone from pain, loneliness or despair. Abraham Lincoln said, "Most people are about as happy as they make up their minds to be."

It's here that we finally rediscover our families. Our crazy, pain in the neck, wonderful families.

Suddenly the fact that Aunt Ida still uses that cracked, yellowed teapot she got in Arizona on her honeymoon in 1942, doesn't bother us like it used to. That she gave her daughter the pretty new teapot you gave her to replace that old relic is now understandable. What was important was the tea and the time, the pot was just another prop.

Families and holiday become as important again as when you were six.

By now Santa has made a dramatic comeback in your life and you meet him again for the first time. He's gray and doesn't dye his hair. He's stays

getaway for artists and architects. These powerful figures pioneered spatial and artistic conventions in the Hamptons.

In a further account, Gordon describes a drive from East Hampton to New York City in which Le Corbusier had hopped a ride to the city with Jackson Pollock. "It was one of those odd moments that could have only happened in the Hamptons — the aging modern master riding down the Montauk highway with the enfant terrible of the new avant-garde." The story recounts that the two barely spoke the entire way, but that Le Corbusier was so impressed with Pollock's driving abilities that he later alluded to Pollock making a much better driver than painter. Such accounts add texture to the architectural timeline that is the basic framework of the book.

Cabana at the Maidstone Club, 1921

The timeline in Weekend Utopia divides the past century by the waves of settlers as they came to the East End. The chapters describe each period starting with the Fresh Green Breast, Bauhaus on the Beach, Convergence, Laboratories of Leisure, The Anticube, Twist and Shout and ending with a summary called Past Perfect. Photographs document the increasing media coverage of the changing inhabitants in Vogue, Harper's Bazaar, Life Magazine, and The New York Times.

As settling group grew comfortable, they fell in love with the area and made it their own. There was always the definite sense that "a new group" was coming in and wrecking things. Such has been the common thread in these parts since the place was first settled. People become protective over what they know here. The irony of the entire situation is that the very thing that makes this area so vital, is also what divides it. The interests of one group enable the explorations of the next. Gordon describes the mindset of those who assembled here during the prosperous 80s, "while attracted by the artistic milieu of the Hamptons, they were not themselves artists."

The book does a great job at explaining how each generation truly fears that the next will ruin things. What one may conclude upon completing the book is that despite drastic development on the East End, hope and promise continue to draw people here. It is the reason people become so territorial here and it is the reason this place continues to change. And change again....

married to the same woman, who's as old as he is. He's fat and wears red, so there. He does what he likes for a living. He decides to be happy even though he faces a long night freezing his jingle bells off in an open sleigh. He doesn't care how far technology goes, he's keeping the sled and his way of doing things. He can't be bought, he can't be bullied, and he can't be bombed.

You find you need Santa more as an adult than you ever did as a child. You've seen enough tragedy and not enough miracles. Santa is an annual miracle you can depend on. Santa lets us pause and reconnect with all our Christmas' past. Every snowfort we ever built, every snowball we threw, everytime we stripped off freezing wet coats and mittens by the back door, we remember. Every tree we ever had in the house, the same familiar decorations year after year, we remember. That all caroling improves with eggnog; we remember. That tomato soup and grilled cheese sandwiches are still the only appropriate meal during a snowstorm, we remember. Santa's best present is the merriment and wonder of the season. Our mission in December is not to accomplish anything more than have fun and learn to love life as we give, and sometimes receive, charity.

As soon as we hear Bing Crosby sing "White Christmas," we hear the sound of our own back door, the smell of our own pillow, echoes of our parent's voice. The smell of pine, gingerbread, turkey, cookies in the oven, it's all there, even when it isn't. It's all part of the magic Santa brings.

As for me, I no longer need Santa's presents, but God above, how I need his presence.

God bless you all, and God Bless America!
Your Gal, Sal.

we will do, though, is we will regulate the situation so that people are not taken advantage of by someone else who comes in and thinks they have a right to do something. You, sir, live on Park Avenue."

Mayor Romanosky made this last comment to Jeremiah Gutman, a supporter of Serran-Pagan, who was at the meeting.

"I live on Park Place," Gutman replied.

When it is over, three members of the public speak and make reference to the mayor's extended outburst. They are Francesca Rianen, Pam Ritlanny and Jody Mark. Here is what they have to say.

Mr. Mayor, I was extremely disturbed by the outburst that I heard you give there. It seems to me that you violated the same laws that you've given to everybody else to only speak for five minutes, for one thing, and I have to say in all due respect that was the most unprofessional display that I've ever seen on the part of an elected official in my long life.

—Francesca Rianen

I am appalled at what I heard here from you, mayor of Southampton. I have never seen such venom coming from a public official at a public meeting, and to imagine that this is not a personal vendetta, it is very hard to see, and to hear that, and frightening, and when the other woman brought up the idea of abuse of power, I have never seen anything like this before.

Tale (Continued from page 29)

themselves in the foot. They forgot that bigger boats also come from Montauk, Hampton Bays, Shelter Island and Greenport. And those are the people who marched on Albany.

Just consider what might have happened if the amount of debris from the second glacier had been the same as the first. We'd have had a

And I hope that you will step back before you make this decision tonight.

—Pam Ritlanny

It is sad to me that something that appears to be such an asset to this community is looked on with such anger, and it saddens me as a neighbor of yours. I also have to say that I was truly shocked at your statements at the anger you expressed, at the personal level of your involvement. This is...small town politics can be wonderful, because they are personal, but they can also be deadly and dangerous because they're personal. This is dangerous. It was frightening to me to hear you speak. And I'm not easily frightened. I think that it bordered on racism, it bordered on xenophobia, I think [loud interruption] you're making fun of someone's speaking to you was clearly horrifying and beneath you.

—Jody Mark

Back in September, after this law was passed, Serran-Pagan told me he had made a decision and he would return to Spain with his animals. He had inquired three years ago about whether he could keep his farm animals on his property and had been told by village officials that it would be okay, which it was. He could not take the mayor's attacks any more.

I was profoundly affected by what Serran-Pagan told me. I had been to his property on two occasions. Never smelled anything bad. Never heard anything out of the ordinary. Thought the place looked wonderful all fixed up, the buildings surrounding a cobblestone courtyard with a bubbling fountain in the center. He had done such a wonderful job. For him to leave all this, be forced from his home because of a mayor who, in my opinion, was out of control, was, I thought, an insult to everything that I know about America and the Hamptons. This could not be allowed to happen in America.

I have written about this situation occasionally from that day to this. I will continue to write about it. The mayor never should have turned this country village upside down like this, creating a situation where NOBODY can have a pet farm animal unless he says so. The mayor should backtrack now. He has every right to send board of health people there occasionally to see that the animals are being properly taken care of. Serran-Pagan does not object to this. (And, I might note, health officials have been there before, as the mayor has sent them there quite often and they have never reported a problem.) Certainly the NUMBER of farm animals on a particular size lot should be addressed.

I think if the mayor removes or causes harm to these pet animals before this is resolved, he should either resign or be removed as mayor of Southampton Village. ●

I AM SAM

New Line Cinema had a special screening of their new film I Am Sam at the AOL/Time Warner Screening Room. The guest list was small but well-known. After an hour schmoozefest, Hamptonite Michael Lynne introduced the film. This movie star Sean Penn as Sam, a retarded man with a young daughter. I must admit it took a little time to get past the similarity to the Dustin Hoffman Rain Man character, Sean's tough guy looks and personality, and some product placements, but once we were with Sean, he took us on an emotional cinematic roller coaster, with no dry eyes left in the screening room. At the end, we all were Sam.

Cathie and Dan hosted Dan's Papers' annual Christmas Holiday Party at The Farmhouse Restaurant in East Hampton on Thursday evening and what a blast it was! Not only did everyone party hardy, but the food was fabulous, too. Dan and Cathie sure know how to throw a party. There were improvisations in the back room and Dan himself donned a turban for one hilarious skit with a taxi driver. Afterwards there was a sing along with Dan playing the keyboard and it seemed as if no one wanted to go home. What a way to go, guys!

A New Culinary Destination: Greenport

By Susan W. Simm

There are many ways to know when a geographic area has become more than a mere blip on the culinary radar screen. But the surest way to tell is when the low-level buzz is picked up by gastronomic superstars who quietly slip through the doors to find out what it's all about. This is exactly what happened a few weeks ago at La Cuvée Wine Bar & French Bistro, a newly installed, stylish spot in the newly refurbished Greenporter Hotel in Greenport, when we found ourselves sitting opposite culinary legend Eberhard Muller and his wife.

Two years ago, when Manhattanite Debra Rivera and her husband, William Pittorino, were planning to attend a wedding on the North Fork, they found it difficult to find accommodations. What they did find, a year later, was a slightly dilapidated, down at the heels hotel in downtown Greenport that was for sale. Debra made the connection between the lack of rooms available two years earlier and bingo! The idea for an upscale, European-style hotel/spa and bistro was born.

Rivera hired famed Manhattan architect Wendy Josephs, former I.M. Pei disciple, to transform the location — a 1950s motor lodge that hadn't been updated in decades — into a deluxe destination. The results? A far cry from the typical Victorian architecture of the quaint fishing village.

While renovations continue at the hotel — Rivera, who paid $700,000 for the property, is investing another $5 million in a project that will eventually include 28 rooms, a European-style spa and conference center — La Cuvée is open six days a week (closed Wednesday). The bistro, with over 45 wines available by the glass, 17 of them from local, Long Island vineyards, aims to please.

The glass-walled, stark (by country standards) dining room of La Cuvée is filled with simple, sleek furnishings. The yellow chairs — molded acrylic designed by Wendy Josephs and executed by a German company — are far more comfortable than they look and the unadorned tables, while slightly close together by East End standards, are the perfect stage for the simple but delicious fare produced by the kitchen.

Make no mistake about it: the emphasis here is on wine and, to underscore this fact, wine pairings are "suggested" with everything on the menu (including desserts!). While this is great for wine novices, who frequently wonder what to drink with what, it is also a great way to taste several different wines without having to purchase entire bottles.

With such sophisticated surroundings, it comes as a pleasant surprise that the menu is bistro-casual and very moderately priced. Among the appetizers — also appropriate as light entrees — sushi lovers should head straight to the tartare de thon, a tartar of tuna marinated in lime juice with Asian herbs and garnished with a balsamic reduction, soy sauce, scallion and black and white sesame seeds. It is sensational. Tartare de saumon, a similar treatment with a strong presence of dill, was also very good. Paired perfectly with the tuna was a 2000 Shiraz Yellowtail from Australia, a light-bodied and playful delight. Also available are half a dozen local little neck clams on the half shell (a little pricey at $9). But the star of the starters was one evening's soup du jour, a cream of parsnip garnished with a snip of scallion. It was sumptuous, refined and world-class. It was also perfectly paired with Long Island vineyard Corey Creek's '99 Chardonnay.

Salads can be eaten as entrees or shared as appetizers. The caesar, though too creamy to be classic, is tasty with its small croutons and the house salad, a colorful mix of greens with tomatoes (Long Island grown, in season), is served with a spicy vinaigrette with a tangy licorice finish. Also available are a "deluxe salad," accompanied on demand by grilled shrimp or chicken and a classic salade Nicoise, served with grilled tuna, haricot verts and LI potatoes.

By The Glass... With Susan Simm

It's that time of year again. Time to look back on where we've been and ahead to where we're going. Looking back this year is particularly unnerving, a real "best of times, worst of times" for the burgeoning North Fork wine industry. Just as the harvest season was unfolding, two planes flew into the World Trade Center and profoundly changed our lives forever. This holiday season, we have to learn to move ahead in a new way. And we are.

When asked for reflections on the year gone by and hopes for what may lie ahead, many of you responded optimistically.

"It's been a notable year for our wines in the media," said Alexandra Macari of Macari Vineyards, "beginning with the Sauvignon Blanc craze set off by the New York Times" and ending with the Times again praising one of their wines, the 2000 Chardonnay, "from the first to last drop, it's tasty." Alex's hope for '02? "For the North Fork to be recognized as a New World wine region and for Long Island wines to be consumed throughout the world."

According to Michael Lynne, owner of Bedell Cellars and Corey Creek, a highlight of the season was the opening of their brand new tasting room at Bedell. Next year? "As the 2000 vintage is released by area wineries, I think that the public is really going to be impressed," said Peggy Lauber.

Jackie Entenmann Connolly, proprietor of Martha Clara Vineyards, feels that the opening of their tasting room this past July gave them "an opportunity to rekindle old friendships and to make lots of new ones, too." Jackie is also optimistic about the coming year. "As each day passes, we believe that the best is yet to come for both Martha Clara and North Fork wines."

At Castello di Borghese, Ann Marie Borghese reflects on the tragedy and the role they were proud to play. "One of the most memorable events at the winery was our Black Tie Gala for the benefit of NYC 9/11 fund," said Ann Marie. The new year? "2002 will see more visitors and more awareness of a truly world class wine-producing region."

"Only time will tell if this vintage compares to 2000 and becomes one of the Island's best," said Tom Drozd of Palmer Vineyards. 2002? "I look forward to the release of our 2000 reds and whites onto the market. The quality of this vintage should easily propel Long Island's reputation into a new era of critical acclaim."

Over at Jamesport Vineyards, Ron Goerler commented, "The most memorable moment was harvesting our late harvest Reisling at 52° Brix, a record for any late harvest wine on Long Island." His hopes for 2002? "That the upcoming year is successful in terms of tourism," said Ron. "I also hope we have a hot summer!"

At Channing Daughters of Bridgehampton, all harvesting is done by hand. "I was awed by the vibrancy and perfection of the grapes," said Lisa Michel. "I placed cluster after cluster into the basket without needing to trim." Prediction for '02? "Long Islanders will finally turn their heads enthusiastically towards their own backyard bounty."

Tiny Bubbles: Instead of reaching for that French sparkler this New Year's, try one of our local beauties for a change. Osprey's Dominion offers a rich, yeasty wine with mouth-filling body and delicate little bubbles. Lieb Cellars, anxiously awaiting the release of their 1994 Blanc de Blanc, will introduce it to the world on December 23. Made from 100% Pinot Blanc. Palmer Vineyard's Reserve Brut Champagne, a blend of Chardonnay, Pinot Blanc and Pinot Noir from two vintages, scored an 89 by the Beverage Testing Institute.

Some caviar with your bubbles? Head over to Salamander General Store on First Street in Greenport. They have one ounce jars of beluga, sevruga and osetra.

However you celebrate it, have a happy, healthy New Year. See you in January. Cheers, Susan greens, linguine with seafood, fresh herbs and cherry tomatoes in a white wine sauce, pasta with homemade pesto and "poisson du jour" (fish of the day). But the news here is the classic steak au poivre, owner Debra Rivera's recipe expertly executed by chef Frank Möller. A slab of perfectly cooked beef tenderloin, accompanied with a cognac-laced cream sauce, was encrusted with just the right amount of freshly cracked pepper. Sometimes inedible due to a heavy hand with the pepper mallet, the chef achieves a delicate balance. This is bistro fare at its best, especially when accompanied by a potato gratin and simple, steamed green beans.

The beauty of this menu is also its lack of rigidity. One of the amusements and delights of this menu is a sandwich (and variations thereof) straight from France: the croque monsieur. This is the traditional French bistro classic, made with honey and nutmeg, and topped with Gruyere cheese and bechamel sauce. The namesake, served here with grilled ham, is also available as a "croque madame," topped with a poached egg. Also available are a croque de la mer, made with sliced salmon and dill sauce, and a croque vert, a vegetarian version made with fresh vegetables. These sandwiches make great late evening bites.

Mark Saladino, a well-known East End mechanic and a champion Sports Car Club of America racing driver once said to me, "There's no such thing as too much horsepower." Of course he was biased, because from a racer's point of view, more horsepower means your car has a better chance of winning the race. However, there are exceptions to this rule.

Another friend, who holds an FIA International Racing license and has raced at Sebring and the Neurenburg Ring, tells this tale. Several years ago he borrowed a factory Porsche Turbo Carrera. Maybe there's something about wet European roads, but he said, in the rain, the Porsche scared the living daylight out of him. We all know about turbo lag and when the turbocharger boost did arrive on those early Porsche turbo engines, it added about 100 horsepower to the heavy rear end of the car. Mix wet pavement into this formula and an aggressive driver, and you've got a car that just wants to take you for a spin (literally). Maybe that's why they put windshield wipers on the back windows of Porsches — so you can see where the back of the car is heading in the rain! The Porsche turbo is one of the world's great sunny day cars, but, in the rain, it simply has too much power. Like the theme park at the end of the L.I.E., a blown Porsche can get wet and wild.

Probably the most outrageous machines on the highway, from a power to weight ratio, are the Japanese super-bikes. It amazes me that these rocket ships are allowed to be sold to, of all people, a younger buying public. Some of these bikes produce up to 175 horsepower and weigh only about 350 pounds. They are the fastest accelerating machines on wheels. Zero to sixty in three seconds is possible. If one is looking for thrills and speed, there is no more bang-for-the-buck than on a rice-rocket super-bike. Their appeal is that they are clearly overpowered and, to a novice rider, dangerous.

I once owned an MG with a tired engine. In those days, a common engine swap was to put a Triumph TR-3 engine into a MG. The TR-3 engine was reputed to be a better motor and, as a bonus, you got 100 horsepower compared to the MG's original 54. After the engines were switched and I first test drove the car, I was delighted with the extra power and acceleration. However, to my dismay, whenever I floored the throttle, the car would jump sideways into another lane. It seems the simple ladder frame of the MG twisted from the torque of the more powerful engine and steered the car sideways. I kept the car for many years and adapted to this weird, modified and overpowered MG. This crazy car was actually fun to drive and it was always fun to blow off Austin Healeys and Alfas in my boxy and dated looking MGTD.

There is a famous true story about the fastest airplane ever built, the X-15 rocket plane. On October 3, 1967, it attained a speed of 4,520 miles per hour, a speed record that stands to this day. Now get this: the reason it was so fast is that it had a MILLION horsepower rocket engine. It was so dangerous and soooo fast while the engine was running, which was about only three or four minutes because the F-15 was dropped from beneath the fuselage of a mother ship. The hapless pilots had little control of the craft until the engine stopped. To quote one pilot, "It was the only airplane I ever flew where I was glad when the engine quit." This plane certainly had too much power and, like the space shuttle, I guess that's the only way to get up there.

Some SUVs being built today have too much horsepower. Most SUVs are so heavy, they need lots of power. In turn they all get terrible gas mileage. They bring new meaning to the expression, "road hog."

The only time I really longed for more power was when I owned a little Fiat 500. It had a tiny two-cylinder engine with 24 horsepower. All I wanted was just another 100!

CLASSIC TOYS

Somewhere in the toy stores of America, hiding in the vast aisles among the towering piles of Harry Potterabilia, there is a collection of toys that have withstood the test of time. They have made it through years of endless shifting childhood whimsy and the ephemeral fads that seem to accompany the release of every new movie and TV show. They are toys that kids love to play with and receive. They are classic toys and they deserve a place under the tree next to the Xbox and in front of the I-Cybie Robot Dog.

A childhood without LEGOs can legitimately be classified as "deprived." Created in 1930, few toys offer such creative potential and a myriad options for combination. (Two eight-studded bricks can be combined twenty-four different ways. Three eight-studded bricks can be combined 1,060 different ways. Six bricks can be combined 102,981,500 different ways.) LEGO, which is formed by the Danish words "leg godt," meaning "play well," is quick to capitalize on popular trends – witness their current Harry Potter collection – but the beauty of the product is that as the fad passes the LEGOs can still be transformed into anything a child's imagination can dream up.

Continuing the building tradition is the ever-popular Erector Set, which was invented by A.C. Gilbert in 1913. He was fascinated by the sight of steel girders that were used to construct buildings and he surmised that children would be equally fascinated. Today, with the addition of electric motors and toy-technology, the Erector Set has undergone a bit of a modernization, but the original spirit of the toy is very much intact.

Perhaps even more basic than the Erector Set are Lincoln Logs, which were invented in 1916 by John Lloyd Wright, the son of architect Frank Lloyd Wright. By the look of them it would seem that Lincoln Logs were inspired by log cabins, but the idea came to the younger Wright when he saw the construction techniques used in the foundation of the earthquake-proof Imperial Hotel in Tokyo, which his father designed. Lincoln Logs are great because when the kids tire of them, the dog will spend hours chewing them beyond recognition.

Speaking of eating things, no childhood is complete without some Play-Doh. When Play-Doh made its first appearance in 1956 it was only available in one color, off-white, and it came in a one-and-a-half pound can. Since then the color palette has expanded and more than 700 million pounds of Play-Doh have been sold, though the formula still remains a secret. Play-Doh is now often sold in kits so you can make Play-Doh pizzas and Play-doh ice cream.

Six years before Play-Doh made an appearance there was the old standby, Silly Putty. Today more than 1,500 pounds of Silly Putty is made every day, which is more than 20,000 eggs worth. Silly Putty is great fun, which makes some of the applications it's been used for over the years seem rather amusing. It was used to take footprints of gorillas at a zoo in Columbus, Ohio, it was carried by the astronauts of the Apollo 8 mission to alleviate boredom and hold down tools in the weightless environment and it is recommended by several organizations that help people quit smoking. Feel the urge? Well just grab your Silly Putty and knead away. This is the perfect gift for the chain smoking fifth grader in your life.

A real classic: Etch-A-Sketch

There is something endlessly amusing about putting a nose where an ear should be, and eyes where a mouth is usually located which explains why Mr. Potato Head is still stocking store shelves after fifty years. Mr. Potato Head is actually the first toy that was ever advertised on TV and he has changed little over the years, though he has gained a wife and a couple little spuds.

The realm of popular board games has stayed true to the classics over time. Still near and dear to many a child's heart is Parcheesi, which was introduced by Milton Bradley in 1867. Don't forget Chutes and Ladders or another longtime favorite Candy Land, which was invented by Eleanor Abbott, who devised the game for children with polio while she was recovering from the disease. Though polio is now a thing of the past, Candy Land is as popular as ever. Clue arrived on the scene in the same year as Candy Land. Kids still love trying to figure out if it was Mrs. Peacock in the library with the candlestick or Colonel Mustard with the revolver in the conservatory. For a good test of your flexibility there's always Twister, which big kids seem to enjoy as much as little kids, and for a more sedate evening you can go with Uno. To find out if you have steady hands and nerves of steel there's always Jenga. Be careful if you're getting this for the kids, because this year there is a new "adult" version of Jenga that has rather racy instructions on the bottom of each block.

You'd never know it by looking at her and it's not polite to ask a lady's age, but this year Barbie is forty-two. She is quite the international gal, available in 140 countries and more than a billion of the buxom blondes have been sold over the years. Mattel, who makes Barbie, is one of the world's largest apparel manufacturers solely because of the clothes it produces for Barbie. With two dolls being sold every second it looks like Barbie has plenty of good years left in her.

For the artistically inclined, you can't go wrong with a good old box of Crayola Crayons. For ninety-seven years the boxes of brightly colored crayons have been a standard part of childhood creativity. A Yale University study revealed that the smell of crayons is one of the twenty most recognizable smells to American adults. Etch-A-Sketch is another timeless classic and the formula hasn't changed for forty-years: two white knobs, a bright red plastic case and silver glass screen. The Etch-A-Sketch enjoys such popularity that some artists have devoted themselves to the medium and are able to turn out fantastically intricate works on the toy. Lite-Brite is another favorite for the up-and-coming artist, with its multi-colored pegs that glow when pushed into the illuminated peg holes. The genius of these toys is that they are instruction-free and they're limited only by imagination.

Of the few toys that have achieved iconic status, the Radio Flyer Wagon, introduced in 1917, is definitely at or near the top of the toy world. The little red wagon is as American as apple pie and Norman Rockwell. All you need is a hill or a dog and some rope and you're guaranteed to have hours of fun. Not to mention the problem solving skills that your kids will develop while trying to convince Fido to pull them around. The Radio Flyer is here to stay.

As the hours before Christmas dwindle and the barrage of commercials becomes overbearing, take a minute to consider the options for good old-fashioned fun. None of these toys have 256-bit processors and multi-level multi-player systems. They don't talk and they don't need batteries. They are simple and they have been around for years. And there is a reason for that – they are just great toys.

Christmas Catalogue 2001

Well my friends, this is the last column for 2001. I will still be shopping though, while we are on hiatus. Let's finish the year with some real cool stuff, come shop with me...

Have you been to Jetties Surf-Skate-Snow shop on Main Street in Westhampton Beach yet? Well on Friday, December 23, from 8 p.m. to midnight you can save 50% on all fall clothing and footwear in stock. For all of you headed south for the winter, grab a pair of boardshorts for just twenty bucks, and summer T-shirts for just $10. This sale is not to be missed. For the record, it's called "Midnight Madness Sale", so don't miss out on the savings.

Looking for the perfect holiday gift? Look no further than Potato Road Confections. Potato Road, located in Southampton, is a micro-confectionary specializing in hand-made European style chocolates. Selections include "The Ocean Road," (fresh mint infused ganache enrobed in bittersweet chocolate); "The Dune Road," (toasted coconut clusters) and "The Meadow Lane," (premium nut bark). Other flavors include ginger, rum, champagne, caramel and praline. Since each order is custom made and taken only by phone, Potato Road Confections has been a well kept secret serving a very exclusive clientele in the Hamptons and Manhattan. If you are a true chocolate connoisseur, call Tricia to place an order at 287-0030.

On Main Streets in Southampton and Bridgehampton at Complements Lingerie you will find all your cozy warm jammies and robes and some great sexy numbers to ring in the New Year. I'll have one of each please!

Check out the Omron Body Fat Monitor at Gym Source located on Windmill Lane in Southampton please...Seeing is believing and you must believe this one...This item is on sale 'til December 31 and you can purchase it for only $70. It regularly sells for $99, this is a whale of a sale, don't pass it up. While you're there check out the Reebok Elliptical Trek III that lists for $2,200 and is now on sale for $1,499. Extravagant? You're worth it!

For a passionate gift to the one you love, that is pure holiday luxury, step into the past at Gems of the Past on Park Place in East Hampton. I love the 1920's bracelets with rubies and diamonds, set in platinum and the deco style dress-set in diamonds and emeralds that are set in 18k gold to name only two...There is a sale on all jewelry with discounts from 10% to 25%. What a way to start the New Year, huh?

In East Hampton on Newtown Lane, at A Little of What You Fancy, you will find a one stop shopping spot...For children, they carry hand-made wooden pull toys and wind-up toys that will ring out wonderful memories and make for a unique and fun gift for every child on your list. Other collectibles include hand-made jewelry boxes, pottery, watercolors and gift cards from local artists, for that special someone. Want to make an impression? Look for the luxurious Eskimo throws, recently featured in Oprah magazine. The varied collection ranges from colorful plaid or waffled lambwool, to tartan cotton, which actually feels more like cashmere, to 100% cashmere and 100% mohair. Also, bath and beauty products are in abundance and they are introducing two new lines: Melinda's Weeds from Sag Harbor Soap Company (which I use myself), and Neil's Yard Remedies from London. They also carry Lothantique, Pharmacopia, the Tymes collection and of course,

Shop 'til You Drop dot.com...With Maria Jennariello

Uh oh, I'm in trouble! I found some great shopping websites for those of you that like to shop at home... especially when the weather starts to get chilly. Why leave your home when you can do some shopping right in front of the fireplace? So let's do some dot.com shopping.

At www.eleanors.com, you will find a fabulous collection of bags, jewelry, pashminas, sweaters and body care. Eleanors graces the quaint Village of Westhampton Beach, (Main Street), with unique style and classic sophistication, and you can see it all on her website. Love the Royal Pashmina, 100% wool made in Nepal. Great colors such as lavender, black, celadon, and khaki are priced at $300. Eleanors offers a wide variety of unique necklaces, earrings and bracelets from exotic to exquisite, bags, sweaters and body care. This is a brand new website so be sure to CLICK...

Here's a good one that is located on Main Street in Southampton. www.thehungmind.com is a computer and internet training station with classes for beginners and advanced. New classes are beginning soon. So get clicking.

Also on Main Street at Electronic Strategies you can click on www.es-ny.com for design and installation of electronic systems. There are great gift ideas on this website.

www.islandsurf.com has polarized DSO sunglasses (Skinny's, T-Bone and Phattes) for $85, non-polarized are $55 on the exclusive website sale. These are less than in their shops that are conveniently located in Westhampton Beach and Sag Harbor. You should also know that their photo gallery has been updated from last week's swell.

The Ultimate Mini Set from www.tonytina.com

The internet toy store www.judithanne.com has a complete line of plush toys, arts and crafts, baby and toddler toys, costumes and accessories music, children's furniture, trucks and ride-on-vehicles, dolls and accessories, books and much more. Also located on Jobs Lane, Judith Anne is just a click away.

How about a nice warm hat for those cold, windy days of winter? www.annemoore.com is the place to warm-up and be happy... There is a wonderful fall/winter hat collection on the website and one of my favorites is the Designer Cowboy in chocolate brown fur for only $145. Check out the Holiday Gatsby in cranberry felt for only $170. Located on Main Street in Bridgehampton, Anne is having a spring and summer hat sale with 30% off.

One of my favorites is definitely www.betseyjohnson.com for clothes and accessories. The new holiday styles are in! There is a hot sale on tops, bottoms, dresses, separates, and accessories such as bags, shoes and jewelry. Love the candles for only $32, soap is $14 and her perfume is a bargain at $50. Shoes for the holiday? Check out the "Rhinestone Starburst" at $210, you will love it, "Ankle Polly" at $192 and the "Lulus Trashy" a buy deal at $170. Betsey Johnson is also located on Park Place in East Hampton.

How about your best friend? At www.paintedpetportraits.com you can get a portrait painted of your pet or pets by East Hamptonite, Ellen Silverberg. With whimsy and love, she will create a memorable portrait of your best friend. These are special paintings that capture the soul and personality of her animal subjects through their eyes and unique postures. They make a thoughtful and everlasting gift to give yourself or that special pet lover in your life.

At www.polo.com you will stay warm with the fall savings sale with 40% off men's clothing, 45% off ladies and up to 50% off children's clothing. Check out the bedding, bath, accessories, bar and glassware section. You will find fabulous Tartan cashmere scarves, holiday plaid shirts and more that make great holiday gifts for those special people on your list. And hey, don't forget the Polo fragrance.

How about www.potterybarn.com for fashions to spruce up your home for the holidays? From barware to accessories and frames to albums, there's something

HOLIDAY COUNTDOWN

Now is the time to take stock of your inventory so that getting yourself pretty for the holidays is effortless, with no last minute panic attacks.

Assuming that the presents have now all been selected and wrapped, you have a lot of time to bake the cookies and decorate yourself. Make sure you have chosen more than one outfit to wear for each occasion. I find that when I am having a bad hair day, the outfit will make or break my look. Check to make sure there are no fraying hems to sew, no missing buttons, and I know this goes without mentioning...no stains. Doing all of this in advance can save you a lot of grief at the last minute. Make sure that you have several pairs of panty hose and knee-highs in different shades to complement your chosen outfits.

Whether you leave your hair down or decide on an updo, having the right implements on hand will make it go smoothly. Hair fasteners like bobby pins and hairpins for twists are essential for most hairdos that go up. Twist-in rhinestones or pearls are great for catching light and jazzing up an otherwise boring hairdo. Have a good holding spray for your hair. A tip to give you a lift: get yourself a Freeze type hair spray, not a soft holding one for these delicate dos.

For sides that lift and sort of leave the face, have your hair combed and tilt your head to one side. Taking a comb, preferably a wide tooth one, hold your hair out with it. Pick up your can of spray and give it a spritz, all the while still holding the hair out in place. Get your blower and set it on low volume and give your hair a blast of air till the spray dries. Hold your head upright and voila! Your hair will remain that way all night long.

The same can be done for the crown section of your head. If your roots need a lift, hold a close tooth comb about three inches from your scalp. Apply the freeze spray toward the roots, taking care to avoid the surrounding area. Do your blower routine and you will have hair with volume. These are secrets we do for achieving great updos with hair jutting out here and there. Try it, you'll love it!

Check to be sure you have the right shades of polish for your fingernails and toes. Having some French White on hand may be helpful if you don't feel like a color. Get a clear nail polish to insure its longevity. I love

Nail Slicks by Cover Girl. I like to apply the white tips without the light contrasting shade. Give yourself two coats of White on White for your tips and two coats of Nail Slicks and you are set for a few days. Make sure you give yourself at least twenty minutes drying time between coats. If you don't, you will get a nail smudge and there is no way to repair it without removing the whole nail color and starting over.

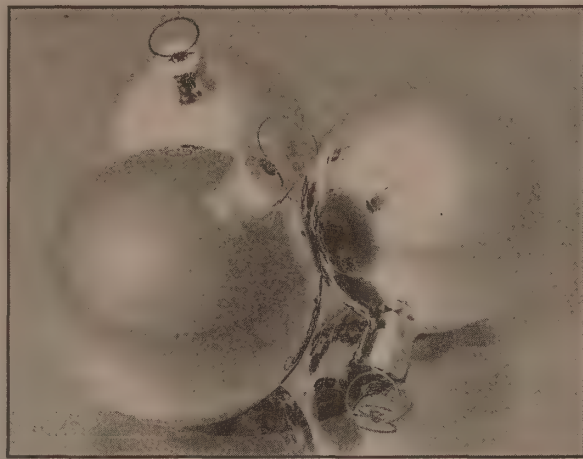

If you are going to be at an indoor party, you can apply your makeup a little heavier. Don't forget to bring an emergency touch up bag containing lipstick, gloss, a loaded brush (covered) with blush and powder and a small brush/comb.

If you are going to a house party, have a little gift to bring along for the hostess. I know, I know, a bottle is in order, but a thoughtful gift for the hostess other than cookies or some other holiday treat will be much appreciated. You can pick up some bulbs in pretty containers to be forced over the holidays. Maybe a nice holiday CD with soft piano music or light jazz. Holiday hand towels perhaps for her powder room make a very nice gift. Perhaps an unusual ornament to hang on the tree or door knob. Christmas bells are wonderful! Remember to get something that she perhaps wouldn't ordinarily pick up for herself. Keep the theme of the holidays in mind.

Whatever you do, just plan ahead. The time you put into getting things together will pay off at the last minute.

Happy Holidays!!

CHARLIE TROTTER COOKS... With Silvia Lehrer

When a name such as Charlie Trotter, one of America's top chefs, comes across my desk, I sit up and take notice. He is the chef and owner of Charlie Trotter, one of America's critically acclaimed restaurants in Chicago. His food represents a journey into hitherto unexplored culinary terrain, to carefully blend flavors and to create dishes that both excite and challenge. Charlie Trotter took up this challenge incorporating Lucini Italia's Pinot Grigio white wine vinegar into a vinaigrette enhancing the flavor of his festive rack of lamb, a sophisticated dish for holiday entertaining. In Italy, high-quality vinegar is considered a seasoning to finish a dish, the acid of which allows great tastes to linger on the palate.

Lucini Italia, producer of a fine Premium Select extra-virgin olive oil, recently introduced two artisan vinegars: Pinot Grigio white wine vinegar and an aged Gran Reserva Balsamico.

In a recent cooking class at Cookhampton, Executive chef Kevin Penner of the Star Room in Wainscott brought Lucini's high-quality extra-virgin olive oil from his restaurant to use in his cooking. I was delighted to pull Lucini's vinegars from my cabinet, which I've used in intensely flavorful salad and sautéed chicken recipes. To order these splendid products, call their toll-free number (1-800-5lucini) or visit their web address (www.lucini.com).

RACK OF LAMB WITH CRISPY POLENTA AND ROASTED SHALLOT-PINOT GRIGIO VINAIGRETTE

What could be more festive than a superbly cooked rack of lamb for the holidays!

Serves 4

- 4 peeled shallots
- 1 cup Lucini Premium Select extra-virgin olive oil
- 3 tablespoons Lucini Pinot Grigio white wine vinegar
- 2 tablespoons chopped chives
- Salt and pepper
- 1/4 cup butter
- 2 tablespoons chopped garlic
- 2 cups hot cooked polenta*
- 2 lamb racks with 6 bones each
- 10 sprigs of thyme, leaves removed

Preheat oven to 350 degrees

1. Prepare the vinaigrette: place shallots and 3/4 cup olive oil in a small ovenproof pan, cover tightly. Place in oven and bake for 50-60 minutes until shallots are soft. Let shallots cool in olive oil, then remove with slotted spoon, reserving oil. Cut shallots into thin strips and place in a bowl. Add vinegar and slowly whisk in reserved oil. Add chives and season to taste with salt and pepper.

2. Melt butter over medium heat and sauté garlic for 1 minute. Fold into the cooked polenta and season to taste with salt and pepper. Spread polenta on a baking sheet in a 1/2-inch layer, about 6 x 6 inches. Cover with plastic wrap and refrigerate for two hours. Cut into four 3-inch squares and sauté in remaining 1 tablespoon butter in a hot, non-stick skillet, about 2-3 minutes a side until golden brown and crispy. Blot with paper towels.

Preheat oven to 425 degrees

1. Season lamb racks with salt and pepper and rub with remaining 1/4 cup olive oil and thyme leaves. Place racks in a roasting pan and roast for 25 minutes for medium-rare or 30-35 minutes for medium. Let lamb rest for five minutes and slice between the bones just prior to serving.

To serve: Place a square of polenta in center of four warm dinner plates. Arrange three chops over the polenta. Spoon vinaigrette over chops and edge of plate. Sprinkle with fresh pepper and serve.

*For the Polenta

- 1 1/2 cups water
- 1/2 cup polenta
- 3 tablespoons unsalted butter
- Salt and freshly ground pepper

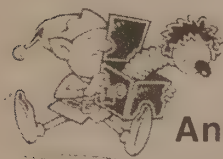

Bring water to a boil in a medium saucepan and slowly add the polenta. Simmer over low heat, stirring occasionally for 15-20 minutes until smooth. Stir in the butter and season to taste with salt and pepper. Continue as above.

A Holiday Message From Silvia:

Get out there and cook lots of gastronomical delights to share with those you care most about and bring some much-needed nostalgia back into everyone's lives. Happy Holiday's!

Kiehl's. There is also a nice collection of men's products along with Godiva and Neuhaus chocolates, truffles, marrzipan and cocoa. Hey, don't forget the hand-knit Christmas stockings, scented and dinner candles and unique Christmas ornaments and home accessories for the finishing touches on your table, hearth and tree.

Did you know that the Sag Harbor Lions Club is having a sale on Christmas trees and wreaths? The sale runs Wednesdays through Sundays from 1 to 8 p.m. until all the trees and wreaths are sold. You can purchase wreaths or Christmas trees at the windmill on the Long Wharf in Sag Harbor. And, 100% of the proceeds benefit people in need and scholarships for people on the East End.

Sag Harbor's mint on Spring Street is having a holiday sale with up to 70% off designer consignment for men and women. Now that's a sale and a half...

Division Street here I come...At one of my favorites, Out of the Closet there are tons of fabulous vintage winter coats and furs that are reduced 50% off 'til New Years Day. For those parties-ladies, look for the terrific sexy cocktail dresses and gowns as well as silk, satin, lace, chiffon and funky 60s and 70s long flowered dresses. Gift certificates for the vintage junkies who prefer to shop for their own gift is a great idea. Ah, I love Lucy! Stop and say hi and tell her I sent you.

Oops, sorry friends, I reported fantastic sales going on at French Pink on Main Street in Hampton Bays; it's Westhampton Beach...Sorry 'bout that.

I want to wish all my readers and friends a Happy Holiday Season and a Healthy and Happy New Year. And to my seven grandchildren, Michael, Joseph, Anthony, Krista, Chelsea, Marisa and Alyssa, your Nona loves you... and a special "Happy Birthday" to Chelsea (December 20).

Until next year (2002), Ciao and Happy Holiday Shopping!

for everyone on your list. I found a great business card holder for only $25, the wine twist cooler for $45, and the cocktail shaker for only $39. Pottery Barn has something for everyone—so have some fun.

The www.eluxury.com site is a trip. There are exclusive holiday gifts for that special someone in your life. There are brands that you won't find online anywhere else, such as Louis Vuitton, Dior and Baccarat. Baccarat has a bugle-blowing angel for $175, DKNY tote with a free T-shirt for $39, a Dior dolly bracelet for $105 and a Donna Karan men's slim wallet for only $75. And don't forget the option of a gift certificate.

An interesting site is www.flipfloptrunkshow.com with so many different types of flip-flops, more than you can ever imagine. There are slides, mules, thongs, accessories and much more. There's a sale shop and a gift shop to help you pick and choose. Click on this one, it's a hoot!

At www.cooking.com you will find a 10% discount on famous cookware and accessories. This is a great site, it gives you a chance to compare merchandise and see which one is the best for you.

At www.bigfuntoys.com I found there are tons and tons of inexpensive toys for children, teens and grownups. There is definitely something for everyone on this website so shop yourself silly.

Last but not least, www.tonytina.com has it all in sparkle and glitz cosmetics (right up my alley). "The Ultimate Mini Wallet Set" sells for $34 and is a great travel accessory. It includes two mini Glitters, two Glitter nail paints, two Aromatherapeutic Herbal Glosses, and one Herbal Mascara. Everything a glam queen shall need. Great gift for your favorite pal. Also sold at Bloomingdale's, Nordstrom's, and selected Sephoras. (Love this cosmetic, it is one of my favorites!).

Until next time, Ciao and Happy dotcom Shopping!

GROUP SHOWS FOR THE HOLIDAY SEASON

December brings dual seasons to the Hamptons: the end of the fall gallery scene before a winter hiatus and various religious holidays. It's no coincidence then that many venues feature group shows which not only highlight the past season but also offer reasonable holiday gifts. Three such exhibits provide interesting contrasts.

DEALER'S CHOICE AT ARLENE BUJESE

Showing many works from previous shows, the gallery's overview celebrates a myriad of media and materials, not to mention the artists themselves. By so doing, we get an opportunity to see art we have missed or have forgotten. The relative sparseness also allows us to absorb work without being overwhelmed, the alternation between small, medium and large pieces also provides a beneficial viewing experience.

Among works catching our eye are those that convey a witty idea and/or possess delicate materials/form. Gerson Leiber's "Figures on a Couch" and "Telephone" are two such fanciful thematic pieces. So is Rachel Friedberg's "Let's Be Friends," although we're not sure if it's meant to be humorous or not.

Ellen Peterson's mixed media work provides a good example of frailty as does Faith - Dorian Wright's "The Labyrinth." Luiz Coelho's figurative sculptures, particularly his "Last Tango" featuring a couple dancing, combine wit and stylistic delicacy to create strength. And finally, Arline Wingate's signature sculpture, "Round Tree," provides another kind of salient strength in these troubled times.

PORTFOLIO PROJECT AT PRINTMAKERS INK

The Printmakers Ink Gallery, located down a narrow driveway in Sag Harbor, has a completely different demeanor: small, homey and homogeneous with its show of etchings.

The gallery (and printmaker Bill Negron's studio) is a gem; this exhibit is every bit as good as the two previous holiday ones.

Among our favorites are Mr. Negron's bicycle piece (colorful and defined yet spontaneous) and Bob Markell's "The Hat" (with the same controlled and liberating qualities). We respect Stephanie Reit's somewhat surrealistic response to September 11 as well, along with Gines Serran Pagan's abstract piece featuring an arresting inkless embossment technique.

Also eye-catching is Sid Delson's minimal beach scene reflecting his architectural background. All the etchings, in fact, have some fine attributes going for them.

DISCOVERY WORKSHOP

Altogether different is the private student show at teacher Hector de Cordova's Sag Harbor home. There is a lot to recommend the works here, especially considering that some participants are entirely new to art.

Many pieces mirror, either directly or indirectly, September 11 events, particularly Joan Berglund's abstract fragmentary images and Ellen Gearson's skyline featuring shards of broken glass. Mr. de Cordova's various paintings, also on display, are noteworthy as well, often capturing the culture and color of a place with energy and commitment.

"Dealer's Choice" will be on view at East Hampton's Arlene Bujese Gallery until Jan. 13. The show at Printmakers Ink (150 Main Street) will be there until Jan. 5.

HAMPTONS NIGHTLIFE WITH CHRISTINE CARROLL

Holiday parties galore, I love it! Pacific East had a delicious party on Wednesday December 12. Dan's Papers got into the spirit at the Farmhouse on Thursday. Shagwong in Montauk celebrated on Friday with a packed house. Club Swa had theirs on Saturday. Have you seen all of those Christmas trees and decorations? Wow! Bobby Van's had their party on Tuesday night and it was as great as I expected. Now it's time to think about New Year's Eve. # HONORING THE ARTIST: Micky PARASKEVAS

Michael "Mickey" Paraskevas lives in a world populated by green monkeys, ferocious beasts, talking pigs, tangerine bears and tap dancing horses. To call him completely sane would be inaccurate. To call him a talented artist who works in a variety of mediums would be on-point.

The painting that graces the cover of this week's issue of Dan's Papers, which was inspired by the World Trade Center towers, is just a glimpse of Mickey's work. It represents what is, perhaps, the more conventional side of an artist who says, "There's nothing I like more than Green Monkeys. I like doing the TV shows, I like the books, I like to paint, but I love Green Monkeys." The weekly comic strip, which will be released as a book in May, is a quirky glimpse into the artist's personality.

Though the comic strip may be his passion, he is involved in a staggering number of other endeavors. His animated TV shows, for which his mother Betty writes the scripts and composes the music, include

Maggie and the Ferocious Beasts on Nickelodeon, Kids in Room 402 on Fox Family and Jerolemon Street, which will be narrated by Kelsey Grammer. A few others are in the works. In the book department, he recently released LA Times. An additional fourteen books for little kids, and big ones too, can be found at Amazon.com. At his Westhampton Gallery, across from the Westhampton Beach Performing Arts Center, he displays and sells his original artwork. If you're in the area stop in and happily escape into his reality.

silvia lehrer's cooking column

The winter holidays, the parties and the sentimentality that surrounds them are much looked forward to. And, what better way to hail the season than with good food and good cheer. Though some of us may not be planning an elaborate feast, most of us will do some kind of cooking and entertaining for the year end holiday.

A great chili, homey meatloaf or a fabulous chicken stew can be the center of attention. A silver bowl mounded with steamy rice, a crisp mixed green salad with mustardy vinaigrette and a delectable dessert can top off the evening's festivities. It sounds easy and that is the idea. We want to have fun and enjoy the party as much as our guests would like us to.

Last winter I hosted some neighbors with Chicken Marengo, succulent morsels of boneless chicken adrift in a savory broth of tomatoes, mushrooms and wine. A delicious orzo pilaf and a roasting pan overflowing with caramelized winter vegetables accompanied the chicken, buffet style. A luscious chocolate mousse Basque completed the menu.

Just serve it all in grand style and don't miss out on the real enjoyment of sharing the holiday with the folks you most want to be with.

CHICKEN MARENGO

This succulent do-ahead dish is simple to prepare.

Cook and serve in a heatproof casserole.

Serves 10-12

1/2 cup flour
1 1/2 teaspoons coarse salt
Freshly ground pepper
2 teaspoons fresh tarragon or 1/2 teaspoon dried
2 teaspoons fresh basil or 1/2 teaspoon dried
2 teaspoons fresh thyme or 1/2 teaspoon dried
1/4 teaspoon paprika
5 whole chicken breasts, skinned, halved, and boned
1/4 cup light olive oil
2-3 tablespoons unsalted butter
1 cup dry white wine
2 tablespoons tomato paste
1 cup chicken stock
1 can (1 pound, 12 ounces) whole tomatoes, drained (reserve 1/2 cup liquid)
3/4 pound fresh mushrooms, cleaned and quartered
2 cloves garlic, finely chopped
2 tablespoons finely chopped flat-leaf Italian parsley

1. Rinse and dry chicken breasts; cut into approximately 1 1/2-inch pieces. Combine flour, salt, pepper, herbs and paprika in a plastic bag. Place chicken pieces into bag of seasoned flour. Close bag securely and shake to coat in the mixture.
3. Melt oil and butter in a large heavy skillet over medium heat. When the butter foam subsides, saute chicken pieces in batches and saute until golden on both sides. With a slotted spoon transfer chicken to a heatproof casserole dish, such as enamel-over-iron.
4. Add any remaining seasoned flour to the skillet the chicken cooked in and, with a wooden spatula, stir to cook over low heat about 1 1/2 minutes. Add wine, stirring to deglaze drippings in pan—then reduce by half. Stir in tomato paste and stock and simmer, stirring occasionally, until sauce is smooth and thick.

5. Pour sauce over chicken in casserole and add tomatoes, mushrooms and garlic. With a wooden spoon stir ingredients to mix. Liquid should barely cover the chicken. If necessary, add up to 1/2 cup of reserved tomato liquid. Taste to adjust seasoning if necessary. Can be done ahead to this point and refrigerated, covered overnight.

Preheat oven to 350 degrees

6. Bring chicken to room temperature. Place in preheated oven for about 30-40 minutes. Sprinkle with parsley and serve hot.

ORZO PILAF

Toast the orzo for a nuttier flavor.

Serves 6-8

2 tablespoons olive oil
1 medium onion, thinly sliced
1 clove garlic, finely chopped
2 cups orzo, toasted*
3 cups chicken stock, preferably homemade
2 cups whole (canned) tomatoes, drained and chopped
Coarse (kosher) salt and freshly ground pepper to taste

1. Heat oil in a large 12-inch skillet, and put in the onions. Saute over medium heat, stirring occasionally for 3-4 minutes until onions are tender and a light golden. Add garlic and cook briefly, being careful not to brown. Add orzo and stir to distribute through the mixture.

2. In a saucepan, bring stock to the edge of a boil. Add to orzo with tomatoes, salt and pepper to taste, and stir to mix.

3. Return liquid to a boil. Then cook covered, on low heat, stirring occasionally for 15-20 minutes until liquid is absorbed and orzo is tender. Serve hot. (Orzo will stay hot in the covered pan for 10-15 minutes after it is cooked.) To Toast Orzo*

Spread a 1 pound package of orzo in a jellyroll pan. Place in preheated 375-degree oven and toast about 8-10 minutes until lightly colored. Remove from oven and redistribute orzo, returning it to the oven to color more evenly, about 5-6 minutes longer. Store unused portion in a tightly sealed Mason jar.

CHOCOLATE MOUSSE BASQUE

Serves 10-12

4 eggs, separated
6 ounces imported semisweet chocolate
2 tablespoons strong coffee
3 tablespoons unsalted butter
1/4 teaspoon cream of tartar
3 tablespoons sugar
1 cup heavy cream

Garnish

1/2 cup heavy cream
Candied violets (optional)

1. Separate the eggs and place whites in a large mixing bowl or bowl of electric mixer and yolks in a small bowl.

Allow whites to come to room temperature.

2. Break up chocolate in small pieces and put in a heavy saucepan. Add coffee and melt over very low heat, or place in a small heatproof bowl and melt in a 250-degree oven for about ten minutes. When mixture softens, remove from heat and stir to a smooth cream. Stir in 1 tablespoon of butter at a time into the hot chocolate mixture. Mix well. Add egg yolks, one at a time, and stir until thoroughly incorporated.

3. In a bowl of electric mixer or in mixing bowl with hand electric beaters, beat egg whites until foamy. Add cream of tartar, adjust speed to medium-high, and continue to beat until soft peaks form. Gradually add sugar, one tablespoon at a time. Continue beating about 1 minute until whites are firm and shiny. With a large rubber spatula, spoon about one-fourth of the beaten egg whites into the chocolate mixture and stir to soften. Carefully fold in remaining whites until thoroughly combined.

4. Whip cream in a cold bowl with cold beaters until the beaters drawn across the top leave light traces; then carefully fold into mousse. Transfer to an attractive serving bowl or soufflé dish.

5. To garnish: Whip 1/2 cup cream until stiff. Spoon cream into a pastry bag fitted with star tip and pipe a row of rosettes around the rim of the bowl. Top rosettes with candied violets, if desired.

Dining IN THE HAMPTONS

American Bistro

2495 Montauk Highway, Bridgehampton
631-537-5665

The dish arrived and the aromas immediately warmed us. The pasta was served al dente with lobster claws and basil leaves crowning the dish. The flavor was incredibly balanced, allowing each subtle note to come to the fore.

Most of the appetizer portions are ample enough to share. The caesar salad is fairly traditional, not overly creamy or garlicky. The steamed mussels were served in a massive pile steeped in garlic, white wine, shallots, tomato and butter. Dunk the crusty roll to fully enjoy the broth! This appetizer when paired with any of the appetizer salads and a light glass of pinot gris would be perfect as a simple Friday night bite. The soup of the day was a creamless puree of lentil, an elegant take on a winter classic served in a warm ceramic crock. Other appetizers include grilled vegetables, crab cakes with cilantro sauce, white cheese quesadillas and a bowl of chili. Once again very simple.

For our entrées, we sampled the sautéed red snapper, which was served with a bright, sharp and tangy mango salsa that complemented the light fish and a healthy portion of mashed potatoes, which only could have been made better with a bit of garlic. The roasted chicken was served with steamed snap peas and was prepared simply. Rounding out the entrée selections are meatloaf, lamb stew, fish and chips, shrimp scampi and grilled tuna, a selection of sandwiches and handful of other dishes that straddle the line between comfort food and more sophisticated fare.

Riccardo sent out a dessert platter to the table (as full as we both were) and we were inclined to sample – it being winter, we all need to put on a few extra layers. Lemon custard tart with whipped cream, banana cream pie, panna cotta with vanilla ice cream and flourless chocolate cake served with espresso ice cream and almonds inspired us to loosen our belts a notch and dig in.

The American Bistro fills a void for affordable yet elegant food in Bridgehampton. We left full and happy, warm from the hospitality and simplicity of the evening. Riccardo and his staff seem to have solved the restaurant riddle and created a casual neighborhood spot with a simple mission. Whether it's belly up to the bar for a burger and a beer or a spot in the dining room for salmon and a glass of chardonnay, American Bistro is sure to hit the spot seven days a week for lunch or dinner.

Dining IN THE HAMPTONS

Ah, the holidays. A wonderful time of year for those of us who love to eat!

The two Scotts have convinced chef Kevin Penner to create a five-course Christmas Eve prix-fixe at the fabulously festive Star Room (537-3332). The regular menu is also available... For that unmistakable Currier & Ives feeling, The Maidstone Arms (324-5006) is definitely the place. They're doing both Christmas Eve and Christmas Day dinners. Christmas Eve dinner is served from 6 to 9 p.m. and is three courses for $70. Christmas Day they'll be serving breakfast and lunch as well as Christmas dinner, a three-course prix fixe for $70 to be served at 1, 3 and 5 p.m. Ask for owner Coke Anne Wilcox.

Now, I know New Year's Eve is supposed to be about booze but, really, all the Dish cares about is the food. There are LOTS of great choices, so here are a few:

Spend New Year's Eve in paradise! The Paradise Café (725-6080), that is. A special menu at this Sag Harbor bistro will be featured in the dining room and there will be two seatings, at 7:30 ($65 per person) and 9:30 p.m. ($80 per person), with music with the Andrew Baker Trio. Reservations required. Looking for something lighter? There will be complimentary hors d'oeuvres and a band in the café ($15 cover).

Pacific East, (267-7770) is celebrating with a special five course dinner from 6 to 10:30 p.m. for $75 per person. Lobster and shiitake Gyosa with champagne kim-chi cream and Japanese caviar is on the menu (and if Howard Stern were there he'd order it...)

There are two lovely choices at Tierra Mar in Westhampton Beach (288-2700). If you're in the mood for a little New Year's romance, try the private tasting in their clubroom. Guests can have an intimate candlelit dinner featuring eight courses with wine for $175 per person. Now, if you're feeling social, Tierra Mar is also having a New Year's Eve Gala for $100 per person. The evening begins at 9 p.m. with a reception, a sit-down four-course dinner to follow at 10 p.m. and dancing until 2 a.m....

In Southampton, red/bar (283-0704) is having a $50, three-course dinner with two seatings at 6:30 and 8:30.

The Crazy Dog in Westhampton Beach (288-1444) will offer their a la carte menu on New Year's Eve, with seating from 5 to 10 p.m. Call 288-1444 for reservations – you just might run into Shoshanna Loenstein...

Side Dish By Aji Jones

Coast Grill (283-2277) in Southampton will be offering a large menu of specials including lobster pot pie and rack of lamb in addition to their regular menu. They'll serve from 5 to 10 p.m. and everyone will receive a complimentary glass of bubbly...

In East Hampton, a cozy New Year's dinner will be served at The Maidstone Arms (324-5006). The first seating at 6 includes a three-course dinner accompanied by Todd Michaels on the piano for $75 per person. The 9 p.m. seating offers a four-course dinner and live entertainment from Edward Hupton, a pianist and vocalist, for $100 per person. Don't be surprised if you run into a Maidstone fan like Rene Russo, Meg Ryan or Russell Crowe. They'll also be open New Year's Day for brunch from 12 – 3 p.m.

Café Amici on North Highway in Southampton is offering a four course, $50 prix fixe menu for New Year's Eve, along with their regular menu. Entrée choices include lobster filled ravioli in a shrimp cream sauce with onion fritti and chicken scaparella.

75 Main in Southampton celebrates New Years with an a la carte menu from 5:30 to 8 p.m. or a five course prix-fixe for $75, seating at 9 p.m. The night includes party favors, a DJ and dancing.

Take note of these holiday hours:

Rowdy Hall (324-8555) will be open for lunch on Christmas Eve from 12 noon to 3 p.m. and closed for dinner. Christmas Day they will be closed. New Year's Eve they will serve lunch from 12 noon to 3 p.m. and be closed for dinner. New Year's Day they will resume regular service of lunch and dinner.

Nick & Toni's (324-3550) will be closed Christmas Eve and Christmas Day and be open December 26, 27, 28, 29th. New Year's Eve they will be open serving their regular menu from 6 – 10 p.m. New Year's Day they will be closed and will reopen January 3.

Alas, one of Steven Spielberg's favorite restaurants, Turtle Crossing, closes for the season December 23- reopening in mid-March.

The dish hears that....

Gwyneth Paltrow and steady beau Luke Wilson had a leisurely Sunday brunch at Babette's in EH. She went for the scrambled tofu with mushrooms and spinach...A few weeks ago Bill Beutel and his wife and John McEnroe and wife, Patti Smyth (separately!) checked out George Martin restaurant in Southampton.

Dining IN THE HAMPTONS

The name O'Mally's, familiar to most East Hamptonites, has been a part of the South Fork restaurant scene since the mid-70s, when Phil Manino opened his first one next to the East Hampton movie theatre. While the famous, pub-style eatery remains an institution in that fashionable village (now located on a stretch of Montauk Highway known as Pantigo Road on your way into Amagansett), the news is that Phil and his son Larry have put down permanent roots in Southold, right in the middle of the North Fork's wine country.

After leasing a spot in Greenport to test the waters, the father and son team decided to purchase North Fork legend John Ross' establishment, in the fall of 2000, after John decided to downscale from a tablecloth restaurant to a more casual venue focusing on roast chicken and ribs, Ross' Rotisserie and Smokehouse, located down the road in Southold.

While O'Mally's is also casual, with an emphasis on burgers — there are thirty to choose from — grilled chicken sandwiches, steaks, ribs and hotdogs share equal billing. There is also a nightly pasta special, usually at least one seafood special and an array of appetizers to choose from.

This cozy restaurant has quickly become one of our favorite North Fork destinations. In fact, since discovering it a little over a month ago, we have eaten there once a week. And the prices make it easy on the wallet, as well.

Phil and Larry are almost always on hand to greet you at the door, and barman Richie makes one of the best Cosmopolitans I've ever tasted. Also available are both domestic and imported tap and bottled beers (Montauk Light and Southampton Secret Ale nodding to the Manino's South Fork heritage) and nine wines by the glass (five of which are local).

On a recent evening, four specials were available: broiled weakfish or blackfish from local waters, chicken and ribs (including a half a chicken and side of ribs) and a prime rib. The chicken and ribs, served barbecue style, is a large enough portion to share, especially if you have an appetizer first. The prime rib, served with a baked potato and delicious asparagus spears, was one of the best I have ever tasted. The meat was well-marbled and fall-from-the-bone tender. And the asparagus! Gently steamed and then sauteed briefly, this preparation is a winner. If they are available, order them as a side dish if your dinner doesn't include them. They're that good.

While the appetizers tend to be fairly ordinary pub fare, including onion rings, mozzarella sticks and deep fried vegetables, the corn fritters are a cut above basic, with their light batter and very flavorful filling. Also very tasty is the Manhattan-style clam chowder, which is always available in addition to a soup of the day. But the news here is the wings. They're great! In fact, we haven't been able to dine here yet and avoid ordering a plate to share. These are what I have come to view as "classic style," cooked with NO breading and then drenched with the familiar, slightly vinegary red sauce, escorted by the requisite blue cheese, celery and carrot sticks. Available either hot or mild, these are a must try for anyone who likes the real thing.

O'Mally's
North Road, Southold
631-765-2111

If you can't find a burger combination among the thirty available, which includes such originals as an "Appleknocker" burger (topped with cheddar cheese and freshly sliced apple) and a "Buffalo" burger (yes, topped with some of that yummy wing sauce), you can make your own combination. Add spinach to a pizza burger, for example (additional toppings are 75 cents).

Steaks are not an afterthought here among the burgers, available chopped, as sandwiches, marinated or plain. The 14 oz. sirloin, served with tasty roasted potatoes, is steakhouse tender. And a frequently offered special, a 10 oz. steak smothered in blue cheese before broiling, is delicious served with a baked potato and vegetable.

Hotdogs, rarely seen on menus these days, are a treat. They can be ordered with chopped onion and chili, with Irish sauce, with dijon mustard and sweet relish or steamed in beer. There is also a "Kid Dog" for children under 12 for $4.50 and "O'Mally's Deluxe Dogs," topped with dijon mustard, chopped onion, chili and melted cheddar.

On the lighter side, a variety of grilled chicken sandwiches as well as a fried chicken basket are offered. Salads include a mixed green, available in two sizes, a grilled chicken and a caesar topped with grilled chicken, or not. The caesar, while not quite the classic, has flavorful croutons and is recommended for anyone seeking a lighter meal.

On a recent, rainy night visit, the restaurant was buzzing with activity. While the North Fork does get quieter after pumpkin season ends, there is still a lot more action here than in previous years. Phil looked around his busy establishment and commented, "I thought that by this time of year, we'd get a chance to paint the kitchen!"

Our Southampton Hospital... "Safe Haven" Saves Babies' Lives

Tucked away, safely in the corner of the obstetrics unit at Southampton Hospital is a wood sculpture called "Mother to Be." The symbolic maternal figure is carved of dark cocobola wood with exaggerated arms tenderly wrapped around an enlarged abdomen. In reality, not everyone is fortunate enough to embrace motherhood like this work of art, which was completed in 1970 on Shelter Island and donated to Southampton Hospital in 1988 by Sue Holzman.

An energetic woman, with a friendly smile, approached from down the hall. It was Betty Commander, the nurse manager of the OB Unit. "I've been with Southampton Hospital for thirty-three years," she informed me in a tireless voice. Not that she needs further reason to substantiate her career, she has recently started the "Safe Haven" program at Southampton Hospital, perpetuating her allegiance to nursing.

"Safe Haven saves babies' lives," she said with strong conviction. "Huntington was the first hospital to be designated as a Safe Haven Hospital in Suffolk County. This is new here, as of last month," she said, "so we have to get it out to the community. Eventually there will be a designated sign outside the hospital and we'll have posters inside the hospital, too."

The nurse handed me one of the posters and I studied the helpless face of an infant displayed on front, and I read the words in Spanish: "Embarazada? Tiene Miedo? Te Sientes Sola?" and in English: "Pregnant? Scared? Alone?" In any language, it will stop you in your tracks and make your heart skip a beat.

Safe Haven provides a place for any mother to safely and anonymously surrender her newborn baby. The program was brought about due to a law that was passed by Governor Pataki, called the New York State Abandoned Infant Protection Act. It basically gives a mother an affirmative defense if she gets prosecuted for abandoning her infant.

Rather than dealing with something horrible they have to live with for the rest of their lives, Safe Haven offers help. The poster also reads: "We Care," and offers a 24-hour hotline number 1-800-TLC-BABY.

"We also want to get this information into the schools," Betty continues, "so that these young girls, who are frightened and deny their pregnancy until they deliver their babies, can get help. They don't want to tell their parents; they just want to 'get rid of this. Something happens to their minds - they become desperate.'"

"So, if they know about Safe Haven, they can call and leave the baby, with no questions asked, or someone other than the mother can bring the baby. If they want, they can leave the baby under a tree or we can make an exchange in a parking lot, whatever it takes to get the baby to safety. Assistance is offered if she wants it. If the young mother wants to be examined, that's fine. If she refuses, that's fine too. We also provide counseling."

Usually, a mother going to Safe Haven has delivered the baby at home, alone. But, if a baby is born at the hospital, the pediatrician in the emergency room examines it. The mother may choose to leave; the baby goes to the nursery, and then the baby will be turned over to Suffolk County Department of Social Services, which places the baby in a foster home.

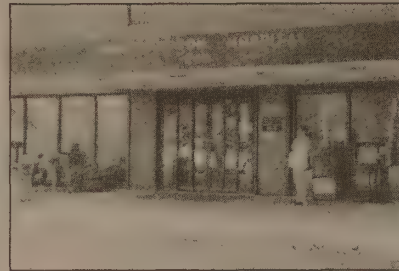

Ms. Commander admitted, "It doesn't matter where they're from. It is kept private and confidential and the press isn't alerted at the time it happens. No one would know she's here. We don't want to scare the mother off."

"Rarely will we see a couple," she said. "The latest case that stands out, I think, is the couple that went to the prom and had the baby. Usually the mom is alone and the father may not even know the baby is born."

Ms. Commander shared a personal memory of a case on the East End. "My daughter went to high school with this girl, Amy Ellwood, who was the daughter of a principal and a teacher, and she had her baby in the house. The other kids thought she was just gaining weight; she wore sweats. She had the baby at home, and then took it to Laurel Lake. She claimed the baby was born dead, but they proved otherwise later on. She actually went to prison. And that's a sad thing for a sixteen-year old girl who is 'desperate.'"

"Nassau County has more cases and we don't even know how many babies are destroyed in New York City," she sighed. We're a twenty-one bed patient unit and have approximately 850 deliveries a year," she said, "compared to Central Suffolk, which delivers about 200 a year. So, chances are, if any young girl is going to deliver, she'll come to us."

About Face.....with Annette

FACING THE HOLIDAYS

Hopefully, you have been gathering some goodies for yourself as you have been out shopping for everyone else. Makeup goodies that is. Seems I can never pick up a piece of makeup for a gift without getting myself some too. My case is bursting!

OK, let's get going on a seven step holiday application. This will be for fair to medium complexion-toned gals, hair included here.

Step 1: Prepare your face for makeup by applying light moisturizer, eye cream and lip conditioner. Using your fingers, dab a small amount of concealer to the inner corners of your eyes, underneath and very lightly on your lids. Blend using your fingertips.

Step 2: For a very sheer and dewy look, use a minimum of foundation to even and balance the skin. Begin by dotting small amounts of liquid foundation on the forehead, chin, cheeks and nose. Blend using a dampened sponge or your fingertips. Follow this with a light dusting of loose powder on the t-zone and cheeks.

Step 3: Use a blush brush to dot soft pink powder blush on the apples of the cheek. Blend in a circular, upward motion, following the cheekbone. Blending in this way prevents streaking and gives a more natural appearance.

Step 4: Using a brow brush and tiny brush strokes, softly define the brows by applying a light taupe shadow, focusing the color on areas where brows are scant. With a flat blending brush, cover each eyelid from the lash line to just under the eyebrow with cream-colored shadow. This brightens the eyes.

Step 5: Use a smaller crease brush to apply a shimmering brown-rose shadow to the lid, blending softly up and into the crease. Lightly apply a dark chocolate brown shadow to the outer corners only, blending up and out. Working with the same color, wet an eyeliner brush and line both the top and bottom lashes with this shadow. Curl your eyelashes (warm slightly first with your blow dryer, it helps set them. Apply two coats of black/brown mascara, or darker depending on your hair color. Before applying mascara, wipe excess color off the wand with a tissue and not Puffs; they are loaded with Aloe. This prevents clumping and leaves you with perfectly separated and stained lashes.

Step 6: Line the lips with neutral lip liner. For the most natural lip line, be sure to use light feathery strokes to draw the lip, rather than one hard continuous line. Apply a taupe-rose lipstick using a lip brush. Concentrating on the center of the upper and lower lips, use your brush to apply a light coat of soft pink gloss.

Step 7: For a glamorous glow, finish this look by applying a small amount of a cream shimmer highlighter to the area directly under the eyebrow and along the top of the cheekbone.

Country Gear: A Store For All Seasons

There is a simple aesthetic that governs the furniture offered at Country Gear in Bridgehampton – namely, it is simplicity itself. There is nothing ornate or even terribly intricate about the pieces they sell, but therein lies the appeal; the genius is in the details, the craftsmanship and the materials. It is an antique store that has evolved, driven by the inspiration of English and Irish country pine furniture circa 1850, and become a store at which, among other things, the elements of those early pieces are used to create new pieces of furniture with antique wood.

When Charles and Rosemarie Disapio opened the store in 1982, they envisioned an antique store that would sell English and Irish country pine furniture from the 650 square-foot space in downtown Bridgehampton. Today the store has more than tripled in size and there are a handful of antiques in the store that mingle with new pieces customers combine elements that they like from a couple of different pieces and end up with a final product that will both suit their needs and retain the balance and style of its origin. All of the work is done in their nearby woodshop on Butter Lane with salvaged barn board and there are some truly beautiful pieces of wood that are used in the creation of their furniture.

"A lot of furniture makers are reluctant to work with barn board because of the metal factor. In a lot of the pieces you see nail holes and inevitably there is some metal that is left in the wood," explained Charles. This translates into expensive production costs because every piece of wood must be planed to a uniform thickness and when the blade of the planer hits the metal it creates small chips in the blade that have to be fixed. Charles is willing to incur this expense though, because "it is worth it for the color and beauty of the old wood."

It seems that his appreciation of antiques is mirrored by his appreciation for a beautiful piece of wood and this is what he tries to impart to customers when they are considering the purchase of a piece of furniture. "We don't sell, we try and inform and educate the customer," said Charles. It's a catchy phrase that verges on being a corporate cliché, but there is a genuine appreciation for the pieces that he sells that motivates the statement. "When we hire someone, we look for someone who can tell the customer what he is buying. If the customer can make an informed decision then we've done our job."

It makes sense because when you look at a piece of furniture in the store it seems imperfect, but there is a purpose to the imperfection. "We're serious about furniture and how it's put together," said Charles, "and we understand that when we build with solid wood we have to keep its tolerances in mind." The breadboard joint at the end of the table reveals a small gap that to the untrained eye may appear to be a mistake, but is in reality a necessary design feature. As wood expands and contracts it can crack if it is permanently fixed, but by giving it room to move as its natural moisture content rises and falls with the seasons, it will retain its integrity for years. Through an understanding of simple principals like this the customer is able to look at a piece of furniture and truly appreciate the craftsmanship and experience that goes into a gap.

By fostering this appreciation among their clientele Charles and Rosemarie have built their business from the ground up, though Charles is quick to point out, "I don't consider myself a business man, I am a man who finds himself in business." He is fortunate to have a wife who isn't afraid to call herself a businesswoman. Having recently finished years in the boardrooms of Time Warner, Rosemarie is now devoting her full time to Country Gear. Plus it makes it much easier to travel.

A shared love of Lloyd Loom pieces, which have the appearance of wicker but are actually made of woven coated steel and were produced in their heyday throughout the early part of the century, lead the partners to one of their largest product lines. While on the hunt for classic pieces, Charles and Rosemarie managed to track down the grandson of the founder of Lloyd Loom and they began to investigate the possibility of importing some of the furniture, which is still being produced.

As manufacturing goes in this global economy, the work was being done in Indonesia and the quality was not up to the partners' standards, but a seed had been sewn. In Italy they found what they were looking for at Loom Italia, which produces high quality woven steel furniture that is graceful and aesthetically pleasing while being incredibly durable.

Interior & EXTERIOR MODULAR MANSIONS

The modular home has made terrific strides since its invention in the 1890s. Americans first bought industrialized housing via mail-order catalogue when the transamerican railroad was completed. Sears and Roebuck capitalized on this demand by selling over 100,000 mail order homes from 1900 to 1940. How many times can you recall riding down the highway awestruck by the sight of a truck carrying a "wide load" fully assembled single family home? As a child the sight of those moving homes conjured scary memories of the Wizard of Oz - and the idea that these houses had somehow been swept up by a tornado with the Wicked Witch of the West lying underneath.

When it comes to modular homes, the days of uniformity are in the past. There are models to fit every budget, architectural preference and location specification. The construction of modular homes is no longer just cost effective, but also custom tailored and time efficient. People interested in investing in a new home are excited about the many customizing options that are available when selecting a modular home. Expansive living areas, gourmet kitchens and luxurious baths are just a few popular features to choose from. Computer automated drafting and design are the first steps in building a beautiful new modular home. Computerization has enabled production engineers to take a mass customization approach and design models to meet homeowners' particular needs. This differs from just a few years ago when only a few standard models with limited options were available. An engineering group works out all of the fine details before a new home is built. This reduces time, lumber and waste during the manufacturing process, while ensuring factory volume purchasing for smart, more affordable new homes.

Stage by stage, the new home makes its way through each step of the manufacturing process. Plumbing and electrical services are performed by factory construction, where the installation of the floor, roof and wall sheathing occur under the protective roof of the modular factory, safe from inclement weather. Modular homes are built to withstand transporting, and additionally must pass rigorous third party inspections during the building process and inspections from the manufacturer's own team of trained inspectors.

Richmond II Model

A substantial advantage of building a modular home is the almost immediate move-in time. Modular homes are built anywhere between six-ten weeks, and then it takes an additional 2-4 weeks after delivery to the site. If you want a home and you want it NOW, a modular home may be the perfect option.

a wide sample of the line with everything from dining room chairs and beds to patio furniture and chaise lounges.

The world-hopping business regimen has influenced a great deal of the merchandise offered at Country Gear. In addition to the new and old antiques and the Loom Italia line there is pewter from Florence, blown glass from Murano and a handful of other goods that find their roots on distant shores. Custom fabric designer Kathryn Ireland offers yet another option for creating custom pieces and though the range of merchandise is formidable, everything seems to work together.

It should be interesting to see what the future will hold for Country Gear. There is an undeniable sense when speaking with Charles that the store will continue to evolve and that it is perpetually a work in progress. That is not to say that there is anything unfinished about the store, but there is the feeling that as Charles and Rosemarie continue their travels there will be an ongoing growth that will be reflected by the store's offerings. Expect good things.

POLICE BLOTTER

'Twas the week before Christmas and all through the towns, shoppers peeped legally except these two clowns. The first, in East Hampton, got a charge out of stealing a 2,500 watt generator from the rear of a Whooping Hollow Road resident's van. The owner told police he had left the van in his driveway with the doors closed but not locked. He also could not give police any serial number or paperwork proving he owned the $1,500 machine. Without either piece of evidence, police have no suspects.

The next Christmas-spoiling clown visited a Harbor Boulevard residence in East Hampton. The owner reported that someone had entered his shed by cutting the padlock and removed a Trek mountain bike. If peddled wisely, the bike has a cash value of $800.

Another burglary was reported last Friday in Montauk. A Gannet Drive resident reported $2,200 worth of women's jewelry taken from his bedroom. Police said that some time between 10 a.m. and 1:30 p.m., someone climbed a ladder to the second story bedroom before climbing through an open window.

Southampton Village police arrested a man last Monday after discovering forty-two tablets of Valium on his person. The twenty-one year old Lake Grove man was charged with criminal possession of a controlled substance in the seventh degree. Depressing, isn't it?

If drug possession isn't bad enough, what do you tell your parents when you get caught selling fried pork? A resident of Southampton received a citation last week for advertising "Fried Pork Lunches" in the parking lot of the Suffolk Laundry on County Road 39. The man said he had no idea that you needed a permit to sell the other white meat out of the trunk of your car.

Speaking of excellent hot lunches in a jiffy, employees of Mickey B's Deli in Bridgehampton called police last week in reference to a man who they say frequently threatens Latino customers. The man, described as tall and blonde, was suspected of scratching an employee's car. No charges were filed against the man, but Mickey B's management requested that he not enter the deli anymore. I hope he realizes the caliber of chicken salad he is sacrificing.

The front window of Southampton Wines and Liquors in Watermill was shattered when someone tossed a brick inside. They then proceeded to steal five bottles of cognac and three bottles of tequila, altogether worth $340.

With limited evidence, police are trying to pinpoint the person who broke into Dr. Cannon's office in Wainscott and stole twenty syringes. A window was broken to gain entry and no one questioned saw anything happen the night of the burglary.

Most kids hear it every Christmas from their parents; "If ya' misbehave, Santa's gonna bring ya' coal!" Obviously this kid wasn't listening. The mother of a sixteen year-old boy called police in Southampton after receiving threats from her son. Police reported that when the mother told the boy to go to school he refused and she said he replied, "If you call the police and have me arrested, I'm going to come back and kill you." He may as well add a miner's helmet to his Christmas list. Police arrested and charged him with harassment in the second degree.

Dear Dan,

I will weigh in on the immobilization boots program that you exposed as anti-community and Mr. Larsen and Mr. O'Neil's response in the Dec. 7 issue.

I was booted in the Newtown Lane lot on Sept. 23 for returning ten minutes late and fined $217. The day began on a very high note at 12:30 p.m., as I drove my daughter, the bride, and a gaggle of bridesmaids to get ourselves beautiful at a beauty shop located in that lot. The lot was half-empty and a teenager waved me in after asking if I was going to a business in the lot. He did not warn me of the two-hour limit, which frankly, I thought ended after Labor Day. I graciously gave the 12:30 appointments to the bridesmaids and waited for the 1:30 appointments with the bride. Bad move. I returned to the car at 2:40, rushing with the bride to make our rehearsal dinner at 4. The lot was 80% empty now! No sympathy, no reduction of the fee, just pay. I did not benefit from CET's grace period for limited time parking, as they state in their letter. I returned to the beauty shop to call my family to bring a credit card. The owner said "Oh, didn't you know that's what they do in this lot?" No. And why didn't you tell me, or post a sign or do something that's consumer-friendly. Frankly, Mr. Larsen, Mr. O'Neil and shop owners, the message you are sending to customers is STAY AWAY. Which I will. And so will the bride, the bridesmaids, the bride's grandma and anyone else I can advise. Incidentally, grandma and grandpa, residents of the community (and former shop owners) for nearly seventy years, don't go to the East Hampton movies anymore. Why? They're afraid they'll move too slowly and get booted and fined, something they cannot afford.

Andrea Gurvitz Fabrizio
East Hampton

BAN THE BOOT

Dear Dan,

Without question you have an obligation to pursue this "booting" issue. After all you are now a public advocate.

Here are my comments. Very simply, the "booting" company has created a legally mandated license to steal. The issue does not revolve around the "booting" company but rather around those clients that support this obscene license. The immediate solution is simple....boycott the clients of this company.

I cannot speak about East Hampton, but I am rather more familiar with Southampton. The private lot still contains a notice that violators will be assessed a fine of $217 to release the vehicle.

My wife and I have notified our friends and neighbors about the Southampton lot and that it is more prudent to shop Rite-Aid not CVS and Waldbaums not IGA.

Why would we risk parking in this private lot? A $217 dollar fine is a great temptation for the two hour limit to be shortened...perhaps to a half-hour. What recourse would we have. Are there "booting maids" in the lot marking tires?

I cannot imagine that CVS and IGA in the private lot are financial beneficiaries of this atrocity. Perhaps I am naive.

I hope you will have the strength to pursue this matter until the town politicians realize how they are discouraging trade in the shopping area.

Bob Feinberg
Hampton Bays

THANK YOU, THANK YOU, THANK YOU

Dear Dan,

We at the Springs Nursery would like to extend our warmest wishes to all of you and your loved ones for a safe and happy holiday season and an even more prosperous New Year.

As you all know, this is our final season at our East Hampton location and we want to take a moment and sincerely "Thank You" for all of your support in helping us serve our customers well and once again for the friendship and goodwill you have shared with us over the years.

We are deeply grateful for your business and hope that we will continue to do business with you in the upcoming years in Jamesport at our new facility.

Wishing you the best in your future endeavors and hoping to see you again soon.

Eduardo and the crew.

THE MANDEVILLA TEE PEE

Dear Dan,

Last Sunday I missed going to church. I thought that the time I would have spent in church, I'd spend communing with nature. I was also hungry, so I thought I'd drive over to the shopping mall in Bridgehampton and have a bite to eat.

After brunch, I must have taken a wrong turn, because before I knew it, I was in what looked like the Garden of Eden. "Not bad," I thought. I missed church and ended up in the Garden of Eden. Not bad at all, for a sinner like me!

After spending what seemed like hours admiring God's handiwork, I spotted the most colorful, unusual looking flowering plant I'd ever seen. I walked over to it, bent down and gave it a whiff. "Heavens to Betsy," I thought. Its wonderful aroma almost knocked me off my feet. It also had what looked like the shape of a tee pee sticking out of it. I found a $165.95 price tag on it, along with its name, Mandevilla Tee Pee.

The name reminded me of a dear old friend of my father whom he had met at Yale, while he was lecturing on Indian folklore.

One Christmas Day, when I was a little boy, my father's friend showed up in full Indian ceremonial dress. He was wearing the most beautiful intricately woven headdress I'd ever seen. He told me that since he considered my father to be his blood brother, he wanted to induct me into his tribe. He took off his headdress and put it on my head. He told me that I was now a member of his tribe for life. He said that I would grow up to be a strong and brave warrior, just like him and my dad. I'll always love and honor that man and his Native American offspring.

I bought the Mandevilla Tee Pee because it reminded me both of my father and step uncle, the great grandson of Chief Sitting Bull.

Although the Mandevilla Tee Pee is a tropical plant and will live only until the end of October, I bought it because it's not important how long something or someone lives. What really matters is that we love, honor, cherish and enjoy them while they're alive.

Richard Sawyer

ANOTHER COVER LOVER

Dear Dan,

I just have to tell you that your cover pages are so beautiful, that, if I were (or is it was?) a wallpaper manufacturer, I would make wallpaper from your front designs, including your logo.
